HUTTON KIDNAP THREAT PROBED

Two-Hour Wrangle Marks Sale of Water Bonds

CITY COUNCIL DEFIES COURT FIGHT THREAT

Sells $64,000 Issue to Finance Woodland Project to Richland Trust Bank.

OTHER BIDDER PROTESTS

Sale Ordered by 7 to 1 Vote; Decides Cleveland Offer Would Delay Job.

Sale of $64,000 in waterworks mortgage revenue bonds to the Richland Trust company was approved by city council last night by a vote of 7 to 1 after a hectic two-hour meeting in which the solons were threatened with court action by the representative of one bidding company.

The bid of the Richland Trust and the Johnson-Kase and company of Cleveland, whose offer was approximately $113 higher, were the only two considered by council out of the 14 submitted. The other 12 were eliminated in a preliminary study conducted by Mayor Claude M. Hunter and City Auditor Paul L. Kelley.

Considers Delay.

Council rejected the Cleveland offer, contending the proposition would result in a delay in obtaining the funds necessary to get the Woodland water project under way immediately. The bonds will finance the Woodland improvements.

The bids were:

Richland Trust company—premium of $108.80; interest rate of 2¼ per cent; unconditional acceptance of issue; appointment of trustee.

Johnson-Kase company — premium of $101; interest rate of 2 per cent; called for legal opinion on issue by bond counsel, certificate of abstract, writing of mortgage, and appointment of trustee.

Council felt the provisions of the Cleveland bid providing for a legal opinion and other action would cause a delay of approximately 30 days in obtaining the funds.

Vote After Recess.

The legislation presented to council in the form of a resolution, was voted on by the eight members present after they had recessed for half an hour following a threat made by J. F. Berno, a representative of the Johnson-Kase firm to file a suit to enjoin the city from entering into the contract with the Richland Trust.

On the vote for adoption of the measure, seven members favored the issue while George Kyle, Third ward councilman, cast the dissenting vote.

Those favoring the measure were C. N. Shultz, Russell D. Porch, George Berg, Harry M.

New Serial Story Begins In Today's Issue On Page 3

A gay modern romance in 15 installments, the "perfect" summer reading, is introduced to News-Journal readers on Page 3 of today's issue.

Anyone looking for educational reading material is advised not to read "Heart on Her Sleeve."

This new serial by Alma Sioux Scarberry will be concluded in a little more than two weeks, in contrast to the average newspaper serial which runs approximately six weeks or two months.

"Heart on Her Sleeve" is a double-barreled romance, with two heroines, one rich and one poor, and two heroes, both of whom make their mark in Broadway's entertainment world.

The action swings through the gay night spots of New York City, roadside taverns, and a luxurious pent house apartment.

MARSHAL FRETS

Thinks Maybe Someone Else Has Key To His Jail.

ST. PARIS—(AP)—The escape of Sam Gillespie from the Opera House jail puzzles Marshal Frank Ammon.

Gillespie came back and paid $1 and costs on an intoxication charge, but that didn't solve the mystery of how he got out.

"Somebody besides myself either has a key or the town is harboring a good lock picker," Ammon declared.

Cities Fight 'Experts' Lean to Der Maxie

By OSCAR RUHL
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

WHO'LL win the big title fight tonight? Joe Louis, the American defender, or Max Schmeling, the challenger from Germany?

The boxing experts appear evenly divided in their predictions and the betting odds favor the heavyweight champion, but, if a poll of opinions gathered at random by The News-Journal as a criterion, Schmeling is the Mansfield choice.

Out of 57 predictions collected by The News-Journal, 35 picked Schmeling.

* * *

Reasons for selecting Max varied. Some chose the German because of his one-sided victory over the Brown Bomber two years ago. Others expressed the belief that he is a more finished and experienced workman and the possessor of one of the most destructive right hands ever carried into a fight ring.

The fact that no former champion has ever recaptured the heavyweight title is not seriously considered by his followers.

Likewise, Louis boosters believe the champion is in better condition than he was the first time he fought Schmeling, and, apparently, disregarded the psychology angle of the first defeat entirely.

They contend that the colored champion has improved vastly since the terrific defeat he absorbed in their first meeting.

An interesting sidelight in the collection of predictions was presented by employes of the city building and courthouse. The courthouse is pro-Schmeling, while the city employes show a marked preference for Louis.

One thing particularly evident is that tonight's bout in New York's Yankee stadium has aroused more interest locally than any

FIGHT GATE TO HIT MILLION

Broadway Jammed, Throng of 80,000 Predicted for Title Bout Tonight.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Joe Louis weighed 198¾ pounds today for his 15-round heavyweight title bout against Max Schmeling in the Yankee stadium tonight. Schmeling, the German challenger, scaled 193.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Keyed to the highest pitch since the all-but-forgotten golden era of Jack Dempsey, New York went absolutely fight-mad today as thousands of persons milled through Broadway and the rest of the midtown area.

Each incoming train, airplane, bus and coastwise steamer poured additional fans into New York for the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling heavyweight championship bout at Yankee stadium tonight.

Promoter Mike Jacobs beamed as he viewed records of ticket sales, indicating that about 80,000 fans will pay approximately $1,000,000 to view the spectacle.

30,000 Pour In.

It was estimated that approximately 30,000 visitors descended upon New York from the hinterlands—with more to come.

Both fighters, each confident of victory, were on hand for weighing-in ceremonies. In direct violation of Promoter Jacobs' instructions, Schmeling, after motoring from Speculator to Schenectady, hopped aboard trans-Atlantic Pilot Dick Merrill's plane and landed in Newark.

W. B. Beckwith, meteorological expert of United Airlines, climbed 12,000 in a plane today and came down with this weather report: "Continued overcast with occasional mist or light rain from 6 p. m. to midnight."

WATCH INDIANS

500 From City, Vicinity See Doubleheader Today.

It would be difficult for a Mansfielder who was absent from his office today to get the story across that he was out of the city on business.

A delegation estimated at more than 500 of the city's baseball fans found varied excuses for going to Cleveland this afternoon, but the major attraction was a doubleheader between the Indians and the New York Yankees.

Already enthusiastic over the Cleveland club's standing at the head of the league this year, fans in the Mansfield area found the two-game bill too attractive, and the city building, courthouse and business offices showed effects of the march on the lake city.

Jap Bombs Mow Down Cripples, Children

Killed in Japanese air raids on Canton.

An infant and a cripple are among the dead in this group of victims who lost their lives during Japanese air raids on Canton, China. It was estimated that total casualties were in excess of 4,000, while property damage ran into the millions as bombers attempted to paralyze commerce in this key city.

MARKET KEEPS UPWARD TREND

Prices Soar Third Straight Day, Volume Continues at Rate of Million a Day.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK — (AP) — Wall street's bull forces broke through profit-realizing today to start stock market prices up again in a resumption of the big toward push which started Monday.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market chalked up its third straight advance today, quickly snapping out of an opening decline on profit-taking attracted by the sizeable advance through two preceding sessions.

Most leaders showed fractional declines in the first few minutes of trading, but these were quickly erased and gains running to more than a point were substituted as the morning progressed. Volume continued at a full-day rate of better than a million shares, first-hour turnover of 310,000 shares exceeding totals in the corresponding periods on Monday and Tuesday.

Rails were particularly active on the upside, showing gains running to a point or more in Santa Fe, Northern Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohio. Similar gains were shown by motors, with Chrysler up more than one.

2 British Ships Sunk As Europe Presses 'Truce'

Insurgent Sky Raider Destroys 2 Freighters While In Spanish Waters; Chamberlain Calls Cabinet.

(By Associated Press)

Two British freighters were sunk in Spanish waters today as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, already severely criticized for failure to stop attacks on British shipping, pressed his efforts for a truce in the Spanish civil war.

A lone sky raider sank the freighter Thorpeness with a well-aimed aerial torpedo and later returned to destroy the Sunion. A Chinese member of the Thorpeness' crew was killed; all others were rescued.

Cabinet In Session.

These attacks came as the British cabinet met to consider what progress, if any, has been made by Chamberlain in trying to persuade Premier Mussolini of Italy that a Spanish war truce offered the sole hope of ending the situation which has kept Europe tense for nearly two years. London and Rome were keeping close contact.

Spanish insurgent advices indicated that Generalissimo Francisco Franco, slowed down to a virtual standstill in his drive on Valencia, was preparing a fresh offensive against Barcelona. He was said to believe that a successful drive through Catalonia would clinch victory for him.

In the Orient, Japanese planes twice bombed Swatow, Kwantgung province treaty port nearly 220 miles northeast of Canton, while warships stood by after landing several hundred marines on the nearby island of Namoa.

The attack led to the belief that the long-awaited offensive was under way in South China to cut Canton off from the central battle front. The Japanese campaign in central China continued to be stopped by the Yellow river flood.

NIP AND TUCK

Benson Leading by 9,000 in Minnesota Primary.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(INS)—Gov. Elmer A. Benson today rode the heavy end of the voting in his see-saw fight with Hjalmar Peterson for the gubernatorial nomination on the Farmer-Labor ticket.

Returns from country precincts kept Gov. Benson in the lead that he had twice lost and regained in the early tabulation of ballots from Monday's primaries.

With 3,330 precincts reporting the vote stood:

Gov. Benson, 191,716; Peterson, 182,560.

Benson's campaign headquarters issued a statement early today that they were confident returns from the state's remaining 409 precincts would leave the governor with a safe majority.

HELEN FAINTS

American Net Star Ill, Match With Britisher Cancelled.

WIMBLEDON, Eng.—(INS)—Helen Jacobs, American tennis star, fainted enroute to the center court here today for her match against Joan Ingram of England.

Miss Jacobs recently strained a nerve in her right arm which kept her out of play during some of the tournaments prior to Wimbledon. She collapsed shortly after leaving her dressing-room. The match was postponed.

SEES A WHITE ROBIN

NORWALK—(UP)—Fred Pierce of Collins, O., reported today he had seen a white robin in a tree in his yard. He said the bird was nearly full-grown but was still being fed by its parents who have defended it from attacks by other birds.

4 Deny Nazi Spy Ring Charge, Warrants Out For 14 Others

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Four accused spies, indicted by a federal grand jury as members of a German espionage ring that obtained United States military secrets, pleaded not guilty in federal court today and were continued in bail of $25,000 each.

Federal Judge Vincent Liebell issued bench warrants for the 14 others named in the indictment, which charged members of the German government with actively directing spies in this country.

Issuance of the warrants was only a vesture, for 13 of those indicted apparently are in Germany and safe from extradition and the other, Mrs. Jessie Wallace Jordon, is serving a sentence as a spy in Britain.

Trial date was set for Aug. 1. Those who pleaded were:

Guenther Gustave Rumrich, 37-year-old sergeant who deserted from the U. S. army in 1935.

Johanna Hofmann, 26-year-old hairdresser on the German liner Europa, in whose quarters, after her arrest last Feb. 26, a spy code book and incriminating letters were found.

Erich Glaser, 28-year-old private of the 18th Reconnaisance squadron at Mitchell Field, arrested with Miss Hofmann.

Otto Hermann Voss, mechanic at the Seversky Aircraft factory at Farmingdale, N. Y., accused of stealing plans of military planes.

HEAT BOON TO COUNTY CROPS

Helps Wheat, Corn to Ripen; Mercury Hits High of 89, Showers in Sight.

Although only two days old, summer had grown to be a husky youngster today and threatened to set a new temperature mark for the year.

Yesterday's reading of 89 degrees topped the previous high of 85, recorded on May 3, by a wide margin, and today the mercury moved up to 85 at noon, indicating that a new mark might be set during the afternoon.

Partly cloudy skies held a threat of showers and cooler weather, and the weatherman predicted possible local showers tonight and Thursday.

In comparison with recent temperature readings, yesterday's high of 89 was steaming hot, but the average for the past 24 hours was only 71.5 degrees, just one-tenth of a degree above normal, Observer Otto Sprunger reported. The low last night was 54.

Farmers Welcome Heat.

While Mansfielders mopped their brows, farmers looked with favor on the climbing mercury, because it was a boon to wheat and corn crops which were retarded by cool weather during the spring.

County Agent George B. Ganyard said the heat wave would speed up the ripening of the wheat crop which this year shows indications of being one of the best in recent seasons. Under normal conditions, harvesting begins about July 1 and continues into August.

Fortified with adequate moisture so far this season, the corn crop also will be helped by the warm weather, the county agent said. In most sections of the county, crop conditions are favorable, he added.

CHECK 'CLUE'

Police Get Letter Left in Theater as 'Tip' in Slaying.

BETHESDA, Md.,—(INS)—A letter addressed "police" and found in a theater lobby today, stated the expectant mother, whose body was found in a creek near Prince Frederick Monday, was Mrs. Leslie Botsford, of Bergenfield, N. J.

While admitting the letter might have been written as a prank, state police nevertheless checked with the Jersey authorities and found a woman by that name had moved away from Bergenfield five years ago and had dropped contact with her relatives.

Since no water was found in the lungs the authorities believe the woman, who was about 25, was poisoned or suffocated and thrown into Lyons Creek.

Pennsylvania Town Once Had 18,000 Residents, Now Has None.

TITUSVILLE, Pa. — (AP) — Pithole, ghost town where 18,000 persons lived during Pennsylvania's oil boom, lost its last resident today—at least temporarily.

Charles Bircteil, 86, was removed to a Titusville hospital with 20 gashes in his hand, bites of his pet dog. Pithole's last building, a church, was razed two years ago.

Roosevelt Sees Business On Mend, Signs Bill to Speed Recovery.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — PWA, in a burst of speed, today inaugurated President Roosevelt's 1938 recovery drive with announcement of approval of 291 public works projects throughout the nation with an estimated cost of $92,520,374.

(By Associated Press)

HYDE PARK, N. Y. — President Roosevelt threw into gear today a $3,750,000,000 machine designed to prime commerce and aid the needy, asserting as he acted that industry and agriculture already are improved.

Business—and he included farming in the term—is not and has not been as bad as a lot of people believed it to be, the president said.

He gave these views to the nation at a press conference in the warm little study of his Hyde Park home. News correspondents, crowding close to his desk yesterday afternoon, heard him touch on many subjects, covering a broad field of foreign and domestic affairs, and scribbled furiously while he read a two-page statement on his signing of the huge lending and spending relief bill.

Mr. Roosevelt was in the best of humor as he talked. With his coat off and shirt collar unbottoned, he answered questions freely.

At one point, by request, he authorized the newsmen to quote him directly, something he seldom permits.

"As somebody remarked the other day there have been a few raindrops coming from the heavens," he said, "and possibly they

PWA OKAYS 3 SCHOOL GRANTS

Lucas Gets $40,000; Galion, Knox County Also share in New Federal Program.

The signal to go ahead with construction of new school buildings and additions was given today to school officials at Lucas, Galion and in Knox county as the federal government turned loose the first funds under the administration's new spending program.

E. C. Culler, clerk of the board, who had not been informed of the allocation at noon today, said plans would go forward immediately for construction of a six-room addition to the school and a combined gymnasium and auditorium to cost approximately $90,000.

The township voted a $46,000 bond issue in February, 1937.

Efforts of the Monroe township school board which has attempted for two years to get an addition to the Lucas school were rewarded when a PWA grant for $40,500 was approved.

The Galion board of education received a total of $98,182 for a new school building in the government's initial grant for public works projects under the new program.

The allocation included an outright grant of $44,182 and a loan for $54,000.

In Knox county, a grant for $28,308 was awarded for construction of a rural school building.

Bus Company Asks Approval of City-Wide 20-Minute Schedule

Council's utility committee today had before it a request from the Mansfield Rapid Transit company for a change in schedule that would bring about a uniform city-wide 20-minute service.

Appearing before council last night, H. W. Arnold, president of the firm, asked for permission to make the change that would call for 20-minute service from 5:30 a. m. until 6:30 p. m. with the same service during the evening hours as is now in effect.

"We would like to adopt a uniform schedule that would offer better accommodations to the riding public and at the same time effect a lower cost of operation," he said. Arnold told council the company had operated at a loss of $14,000 in the first five months of 1938.

"No transportation company can stay in Mansfield and suffer losses we have," he added.

Arnold said that the company, assisted by General Motors corporation, had recently completed a survey here and that the proposed schedule changes would also include some extensions and some slight changes in routing.

These would include a possible hook-up of the Glessner avenue-Reformatory line which would add an additional coach and calls for the elimination of one bus on the Bowman street line. The plan, he explained, would speed up the schedule from approximately 10 miles per hour to 13 miles an hour.

Council President Karl Troll referred the request to the utilities committee, headed by Russell D. Porch, after Arnold had asked for immediate consideration.

BABY GUARDED AS COUNTESS CALLS 'YARD'

Dime Store Heiress Admits Precautions Undertaken to Safeguard Son.

London's 'G-Men' Surround Home; Photos of Suspect Sent All Seaports.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—A British court's action in granting Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow's request for a legal order presumably safeguarding her two-year-old son Lance tonight gave rise to rumors of a rift with her Danish nobleman husband.

(By United Press)

LONDON—A threat to kidnap the baby son of Countess Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, heir to $40,000,000 worth of American 5-and-10 cent stores, was reported today.

The countess, the former Barbara Hutton who is the granddaughter of the late Frank W. Woolworth—founder of the 5-and-10 cent store millions—her son, Lance, and her husband, were at their home in Regent's park. It was there, according to the London Daily Mail, that the parents received the kidnap threat.

Home Under Guard.

Scotland Yard, Britain's corps of G-men, went into action immediately. Simultaneously a strong guard of picked operatives set up a 24-hour watch.

The countess, who made her last visit to the United States late last year to renounce her American citizenship, was said to have exclaimed that the kidnap reports were "most exaggerated." Nevertheless, it was understood that she acknowledged that unusual precautions were being taken.

The newspaper's account of the threat indicated that the kidnaper was coming to England from abroad, but other than that it did not report details of the alleged plan.

The Daily Mail asserted that copies of a photograph and a full description of the suspect were sent to all parts of England, with particular attention to points where he might land.

One Sent to Prison.

It was not the first time that young Lance was involved in kidnap reports. In March, 1936, Alfred Molyneux, 33, of Lancashire, was sentenced to four months in prison at Manchester for attempting to extort $1,000 from the countess on a promise to reveal a plot to kidnap Lance who then was less than a month old.

Molyneux admitted in court that he had written a letter offering to disclose a kidnap plot, but he asserted that the plot was "pure invention."

ACCEPT LEHMAN

New York Dems Approve His Candidacy for Senate Post.

ALBANY, N. Y. — (INS) — New York state Democratic leaders today accepted Governor Herbert H. Lehman's offer to run for the unexpired term of the late U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland.

Their acceptance was so prompt and gleeful that opposition from President Roosevelt could not prevent Lehman's nomination in September. It is believed, however, that the president will go along with the governor's wishes.

The abrupt removal of Governor Lehman as a potential candidate for a fourth gubernatorial term sent a host of aspirants for the executive mansion residency into the field.

First to enter was Attorney-General John J. Bennett, jr., but his announcement was met with silence on the part of most of the Democratic leaders.

SAFE AT HOME

Girl, 18, Lost In Swamps Found By Posse.

WOODBURY, N. J.—(INS)—Safe at the home of her parents after being lost since Sunday in the Weymouth swamplands, Thelma Redfield, 18, satisfied an expansive appetite today.

Unharmed, except for some scratches, Thelma was found by a searching party headed by her father, George, about two miles from the point where she disappeared.

Young Wife Disturbed By Mother-in-Law

By VIRGINIA LEE

I HAVEN'T had a complaint about mothers-in-law for a long time. But here is a very hearty one:

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I wish you would write something about mothers-in-law. Why can't they leave young married people alone and tend to their own business? All young people like to be by themselves, and not have some older person always ready to go where they are, and always butting in on everything they do or say.

"We, my husband and I, can't run our own home without his mother saying something. Both of us get awfully disgusted. Please tell us what to do. I have a hard time keeping my house straightened up when she is with us. She never puts things back where they belong.

"Why do mothers-in-law always have to stay with one child? Why don't they stay with the other children sometimes and let us have a little rest and quiet and be to ourselves? Please tell me something to do. A YOUNG WIFE."

Your mother-in-law doesn't seem to have been properly brought up if she is untidy. I hardly know what you can do to make her put things back in their places. About the only thing, I guess, is to praise her when she does do it, or to call her attention in a nice way to the tidy looking house, and ask her if she doesn't like to see it that way.

I think when a mother has several children when she has no home of her own and is not strong enough to be by herself, and no means of support, she should stay a while with each, if possible. As you say, all married couples like to be by themselves sometimes. Almost every mother has a favorite child, however, with who she is happier than with the others. She should not interfere with her children's affairs and make no comments when they are talking matters over, unless her opinion is asked. But you must admit it is a bit hard on a woman who has had her finger in her children's pies for years and years, and rightfully so. She has to train herself all over again. The wise mother-in-law, however, does it.

The only thing you and your husband can do is to write to the other members of the family and ask them to urge their mother to visit them. She will not know you are writing, of course. After all, it is pretty sad for an older woman to be compelled to live with people who do not want her, isn't it? And one does owe something to a good mother, you know. Try to be kind but put it up to your husband's brothers and sisters that part of the responsibility for their mother rests on them. Good luck.

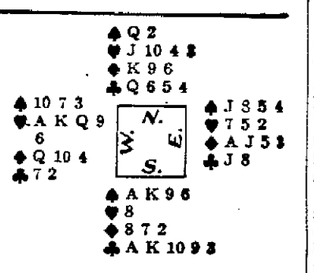
COUNT UP TO NINE

If you see the declarer has a couple of suits which will furnish most of the tricks needed for his no trump game, it is well to count a bit. When the total you get is pretty close to nine, perhaps only one shy of it, don't blindly go ahead and set up a sure trick for him by counting your own suit. Take a whack at the one remaining suit.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South's opening bid here was 1-Club, West called 1-Heart, North and East passed and South bid 1-Spade. North's response to this was 1-No Trumps, and when South rebid his clubs, North jumped to 3-No Trumps.

East led the heart 7 and West immediately cashed his three high hearts and led a fourth heart to clear the suit. The fact the he had no entry to cash the remaining heart, as well as the fact that he set up what apparently was a very necessary trick for North, never seemed to occur to him. He had a splendid chance to wreck the contract by switching to the diamond Q, as the dummy's cards made the contract seem very likely unless his side could find a weak spot in diamonds.

That play could have given his side seven tricks before North could have gained control.

Tomorrow's Problem.

How can West play to defeat South's contract of 5-Diamonds?

Athletic Girl Must Watch Dress

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

IF YOU HAVE a square, athletic figure your probably really haven't an ounce of fat on you, but you may look plumper in your clothes than another girl who is really a lot chubbier.

This is usually because you have a figure without any perceptible waistline, and you are not conspicuously large in the bust and hips. So it behooves you to choose your clothes with a great deal of care. If you pick the right things your figure will look just as feminine as you could wish, and you won't have to worry about those muscles giving you an Amazon-like appearance.

Before selecting your summer wardrobe think over these tips. They will help your clothes bring your shape nearer to your ideal. Tunics that reach to the knee and are somewhat fitted at the waist help to give you the curved look that is needed there. Sleeves that are full at the shoulders, and built out shoulders, make your waistline seem correspondingly slim.

If your bust is low and not too large you can lift the line by wearing jabots, frills or bows over your bust, but don't let them continue down to your waist. They will make you look larger there. Always wear belts that are the same colors as your dress or coat. A belt that is wide in front and narrower in the back will help to give your thickish waistline a slendered appearance.

When you get suits or coats have your jackets about fingertip length.

Capes of this length or a little longer may be flattering in light summer materials if they are dark in color and are worn over a dark dress.

Neckline Important.

Your neckline is definitely important. It should not be particularly high or extreme. A Vionnet neck is attractive and takes away from the square lines of your figure.

It is a pretty good general idea to stay away from the really severely tailored suits and coats. They will tend to make you look a bit on the stocky masculine side. But don't go in for being excessively frilly. That kind of costume may make you look awkward and it is practically certain to give a slightly dowdy effect.

Small or medium sized prints in some of the clever modern designs, or in gay flower designs are most becoming, as are all soft, rich materials that will drape gracefully.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

As Bill buried his face in his hands to conceal the sobs he could make noiseless but could not wholly crush, I sprang from my chair and, going over to my husband's orphaned nephew, put my hand tenderly on his bowed head, stroking his hair gently.

I dared offer no other caress, for Bill is not a little boy to be comforted as Junior and Roderick are in their childish troubles. But I was not surprised when, after a second or two, the heaving of his shoulders ceased, and, lifting his head from his hands, he put both arms around my waist and rested his head against my shoulder with a mute appeal for sympathy.

"What a baby you must think I am, Aunt Madge! I promise not to make a fool of myself like that again. But—I've held it all in so long, and worried—and—"

Defends Him.

"Don't speak of yourself like that!" I said sharply. "You've not acted like a baby or a fool at all. Any other boy with decent feelings would have done the same thing. Your emotion does you credit, and I am very proud that you felt free to come to me about your trouble."

"Anybody who couldn't come to you, Aunt Madge," he began huskily, then stopped, and after an instant took refuge in that never-failing boyish expletive, "Gee!"

"As I said before, Bill, that makes me very proud and happy," I told him. "And now suppose you tell me anything you wish to have me know, and not a word more."

"I'll tell you everything," he said huskily but fervently, and when we had seated ourselves again, he leaned forward, his hands on his knees.

Recalls Mother.

"You knew my mother, didn't you, Aunt Madge?" he said.

"Yes, Bill," I said laconically for I knew that I must volunteer no knowledge of that old time, and must wait for his prompting in everything.

"And I guess you knew how she used to punish us, all but Roderick, not whipping, but ways—"

He stopped while his face turned brick red, and I mercifully took the colloquy away from him.

"Will it help you any, Bill, if I tell you that I know all about it, know that your poor mother was not to blame for her queerness—it was something she could not control—and know also that you are afraid, as we are, that Hank has inherited that tendency to—cruelty—which she had?"

Bill Is Grateful.

His eyes were on mine again, with such gratitude in their tortured depths that I had hard work to keep my own eyes dry and my voice steady.

"There's nobody in the world like you, Aunt Madge," he said huskily at last. "You make it so easy for me—or"—he amended honestly—"as easy as anybody could make of a mess like this. It's awful to have to think—like that—about your own mother."

I leaned forward and put my fingers on his lips.

"Hush! dear boy!" I said. "You need never think or say anything like that concerning your mother again. Put it out of your mind, and concentrate instead on what we are going to do with Hank."

His eyes were suddenly attentive again.

"Something ought to be done," he said despondently. "I've tried talking to him, I've tried knocking him down, I've tried threatening him with telling you folks, but it's all no use. He promises, and then he goes right back."

"I know dear," I said, and I did see far more than he guessed he was revealing, "and you are not going to bear this burden any longer unaided. Your uncle and I are taking Hank in hand!"

Stark panic suddenly gleamed from his eyes.

"Oh!" he groaned. "You don't mean that you are going to shut him up somewhere, do you?"

Spotless Summer Frock Can Be Easy Matter.

Easy Ways to Remove Stains.

Clever Connie! Giving first aid to her new white skirt, gravely damaged in a skirmish with a blackberry bush.

No wonder her summer washdresses always look so smart. From a fast-colored cotton or linen, she removes old fruit stains—except peach—by spreading the garment over a pan and pouring boiling water through from a height. To a stubborn stain on uncolored cotton or linen, she sometimes applies a little Javelle water with a medicine dropper.

Peach stains she dampens with glycerin, then washes in clear lukewarm water. She avoids soap, which sets fruit stains.

The chewing gum on Junior's shirt, she softens with egg white before washing. She covers chocolate stains thickly with borax and washes in cold water.

Our 32-page booklet is fairly bursting with valuable tips on clothing care, kitchen and housecleaning short cuts, efficient ways of getting rid of ants, flies, moths and other household pests.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, June 23.

FAIRLY lively day is presaged from the predominant planetary configurations. There may be rather surprising but not entirely profitable transactions, except in connection with writings and renewal of contracts. An undertone of intrigue or subtility prevails in all relations, calling for circumspection, particularly in private affairs or intimate associations. Romance or sentimental situations may have a tendancy to complicate matters or cause perplexity.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is face a year in which subtle, intriguing or complicated situations may cause much confusion and uncertainty. Although new contracts, agreements and all pertaining to writings might prove profitable, yet there is need for vigilance and wise management.

TRADING TURNS QUIET AFTER INITIAL DIPS

Stocks Show Small Recoveries as Buyers Withdraw to Survey Results of Push.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The early-week drive of stock market bull forces went into a stall today as many recent active buyers drew aside to survey the results of the strongest upward push in months.

After an active opening at prices that shaded lower than Tuesday's finals, trading turned quiet and there were modest recoveries from initial dips.

News of higher prices for lead, zinc and scrap steel, brought a little buying in stocks of these industries. Grains showed backward tendencies, as did cotton.

Wall street forces combing the news for explanations of the market improvement in recent sessions noted the two-point lift in steel operations for the current week over the previous seven days estimated by "Iron Age," as symptomatic of the "floor" being established by many economic barometers.

Analysts pointed out that the important index of electric power production, announced today for the week ended June 18, had shown a moderate decline, contrary to the upward trend to be expected at this season.

Second quarter earnings reports, soon to come to light, were a major subject of discussion.

BLOW TO 'SPEED TRAP'

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy today struck a blow at an alleged "speed trap" in the village of Costoria, near Steubenville, when he ruled the 20-mile per hour school zone speed limit does not apply on state route No. 7 through Costoria.

Sawyer Charges Davey Shirks Duty In Relief Crisis

HITS LACK OF CO-OPERATION BY GOVERNOR

Speech Criticizes Campaign Junkets Followed by Host of State Employes.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Responsibility for the critical relief situation in Ohio's large cities today was placed with Governor Davey by Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Sawyer charged that instead of attempting co-operation with the legislature in an effort to solve the relief crisis, he was "hurling most bitter epithets" at its members, or "wandering over the state on a campaign junket preceded by four screaming police sirens and followed by hordes of state empolye who should be back in Columbus, doing the work for which the taxpayers are paying them."

Attacks Davey Pledges.

He also attacked Davey's pledges of "law and order," pointing to the pardon of Cleveland Banker Kenyon V. Painter.

"There will be no 'Painter pardon' under my administration," Sawyer declared. "No rich banker who has defrauded thousands of thrifty depositors will be given a full pardon with barely a smell of the inside of the penitentiary, while poor unfortunates without money, friends or influence lie in prison, dying and forgotten."

Sawyer denied Davey's charge that he was the candidate of the CIO and John L. Lewis, saying he had never met Lewis.

He also promised "free speech on any subject" to state employes, if he should be elected.

Sawyer spoke before two rallies here, with large numbers of county Democratic officials and employes in the audiences.

ILLNESS FATAL

Miss Cora Howenstine Once Operated Jewelry Store.

Miss Cora C. Howenstine, who formerly conducted a jewelry store in the city, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Albert Baerron, 83 Glenwood boulevard, Tuesday evening, after a lingering illness.

Miss Howenstine was born in Marshallville, but had resided in this city 50 years. She conducted her jewelry business in the Ford building on North Diamond street at the time of her retirement 18 years ago.

Surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Anna Mae Lape, Mrs. David Schradley and Mrs. Baerron of Mansfield and Mrs. William J. White of Wooster. She was a member of the Central M. E. church.

Funeral services will be held at the Baerron home at 2 p. m. Thursday with Rev. Paul Hollingshead officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

DIES AT HOME NEAR LEXINGTON

Mrs. Jennie Fox, 81, Was Lifelong Resident of Vicinity.

Mrs. Jennie Fox, 81, widow of Albert W. Fox, died at her home near Lexington Tuesday evening, following a brief illness. A lifelong resident of this vicinity, Mrs. Fox was born in Washington township, Oct. 25, 1856.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Fred W. Gasse of Independence and Mrs. W. W. Earhart of Columbus; two sons, John of Lexington, and five grandchildren. She was the last member of a family of 12 children.

Funeral services will be held at the Presbyterian church in Lexington at 2:30 p. m. Friday with Rev. G. M. Sauder officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery. The body will remain at the Finefrock funeral home until Friday noon when it will be removed to the church.

When a Mansfield housewife picked over a box of strawberries recently she was surprised to see written on the inside—"Look on bottom of box, please." Turning it over, she read: "Miss ———, age 19, blue eyes, black hair, good form. About a mile out of Bowling Green, Ky." The housewife decided that hope springs eternal in the feminine heart when packing fruit that goes out over the country. The Kentucky gal evidentally didn't realize that most strawberry boxes are unpacked by women and that her alluring description would be read by uninterested eyes.

Norma Scott, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Scott, 197 East Second street, will be a diminutive but bright star in the Ned Weyburn dance revue in New York City Sunday. Norma was taken to the world-famous dance director who trains the choruses of many Broadway productions last summer by her Mansfield teacher, Marguerite Speas. The youngster studied in New York until she became homesick and her mother brought her home. Several weeks ago Weyburn wrote the parents asking if Norma could come to New York to be featured in his annual revue, staged at a Broadway theater. She will sing and dance the popular song "Rain," and Weyburn himself predicts she will stop the show.

It requires a broad education as well as human understanding to settle some of the domestic and juvenile problems that haunt the court worker, Ralph Carroll, county juvenile officer, has decided. Called to investigate trouble in a Chinese family, Carroll was unable to interpret the native tongue used by the participants in the quarrel and finally appealed to a missionary from China to help him out. Even the missionary threw up his hands in despair, Carroll said. "After that, what could I do?" he asked.

SUE TAXI OWNER

Bellville Couple Ask $4,000 in 2 Suits Filed Here.

Two damage suits—one for $3,000 and the other for $1,000—had been filed in common pleas court today against George Reichert, Mansfield taxi operator, by Mr. and Mrs. James S. Russell of Bellville.

In her action for $3,000 Mrs. Russell contends that she suffered major injuries last April 3 when the car in which she was riding collided with a cab owned by Reichert and operated by Junior Brown.

Russell, driver of the automobile in which his wife was hurt, asks $1,000 for medical expenses, injuries to Mrs. Russell, and damage to his car.

The accident accurred at South Main and First streets, Mansfield. Both plaintiffs contend that the driver of the cab disregarded a red traffic light and was driving at an excessive speed.

REJECTS HURON DAMAGE SUIT

Supreme Court Turns Down Plea In New London Crash.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The Ohio supreme court today refused to review the appeal of Mrs. Myrtle Iles, West Clarksfield, in her suit for damages against Mrs. Nettie Lanphere, fellow member in the Seventh Day Adventist church ladies aid.

Mrs. Iles was injured Oct. 5, 1936 while riding in Mrs. Lanphere's automobile. The women were on a grocery shopping trip to New London and Ashland to purchase supplies for a ladies aid food sale.

Huron county common pleas and appellate courts granted demurrers filed by counsel for Mrs. Lanphere to dismiss the action.

SEEKS TO BREAK SNAG ON RELIEF

House to Submit 3 Plans to End Deadlock; Senate to Study Welfare Program.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—House leadership today renewed efforts to break the relief deadlock as the senate reconvened for "possible consideration" of the Davey welfare building program bill which a senate subcommittee amended, reducing from $15,000,000 to $7,500,000 the total amount the state could spend for new buildings.

In advance of a working session of both branches, House Speaker Frank R. Uible announced he would submit to a Democratic house caucus three choices looking toward a break in the relief impasse.

The senate has refused to appoint conferees on disputed financing and administrative bills until the house acts on two other relatively minor senate relief measures.

Uible said he would ask the caucus whether to recede from the house position that it would consider no other relief measures until conferees for both sides begin work; to yield to senate demands; or to instruct leaders to seek a conference with senate leadership to iron out difficulties in the way of setting a joint conference committee.

The senate finance sub-committee may submit to the full committee changes it made in the welfare building program bill, reducing the amount of state participation and providing that no building program should start unless federal grants were made available to aid in the financing.

Des Moines Hitch-Hikers Operate Traffic Lights to Ask for Lift.

DES MOINES, Ia.—(AP)—Harry Stedman, city traffic engineer, complained that hitch-hikers were taking advantage of the traffic lights.

For the benefit of pedestrians, traffic lights on some streets have push buttons which make the lights change.

"Instead of thumbing rides," Stedman said, "they just push the button, stop traffic and then ask for a ride."

GERMANY PLANS VIGOROUS BUT 'LEGAL' CAMPAIGN ON JEWISH

(By United Press)

BERLIN—Nazis intend to pursue their new anti-Jewish campaign vigorously but to confine it solely within legal means, it was indicated today after a speech in which Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda and public enlightenment, said that "Jew stores will soon disappear."

Discussing the recent outbreaks against Jews, Goebbels said in a speech last night at a summer solstice celebration at the Olympic stadium:

"It is self evident that citizens of Berlin should take measures against Jews who are lolling about the boulevards and cafes as in revolutionary (pre-Nazi) times.

"However, Jews should be handled by the party and the state and not from the street. . . .

"Some people lament that Jewish shops should be painted up. I do not condone it either. But it is well known which shops are Jewish. I do not know how many Jewish shops there were in Berlin. But I tell you now that legal means will be taken to make Jew stores disappear. . . ."

In a discussion of the international situation, and specifically to the Czechoslovak minority problem, Goebbels said:

"Germany will not watch much longer while 3,500,000 Germans are maltreated . . . One would expect that nations by the 20th century would have learned that one can not separate one race into two countries. We saw the result of this in Austria. Now we shall see it again somewhere else."

Speaking of the Versailles treaty Goebbels said that Germany did not want war but wanted only to eliminate the causes of war.

"We will not tolerate being classed as 'have nots'," he commented.

SUES FOR $1,000

Mother Enters Suit on Behalf of Son, Hurt in Accident.

Action to collect $1,000 damages as the result of an accident 11 years ago had been filed in municipal court today against Howard Davies, Bahl avenue, East Mansfield.

Filed by Mrs. Dorothea Dillon, 412 Fifth avenue, in behalf of her son, William, 14, the action seeks damages for injuries suffered by the plaintiff who was allegedly struck by the defendant's automobile in August, 1927, on Fifth avenue while playing in the street in front of his home.

The petition states that the youth, only three at the time, sustained injuries that resulted in a permanent disability and impairment of his shoulder, and has not developed properly. The plaintiff charges the defendant was operating his automobile at a high and dangerous speed at the time. Mrs. Dillon is represented by Attorney J. H. Gongwer.

WORK TO COST $3,500 LESS THAN ESTIMATE

Mansfield Asphalt Given Ausdale Avenue Job, Herring Firm Other 2 Streets.

Contracts totaling $23,011 for the paving of three city streets today were awarded to two Mansfield firms by the city board of control, it was announced by Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert.

All three contracts went to low bidders after property owners had been consulted on the type of pavement to be laid, Styert said. The total cost of the projects is approximately $3,500 below the city engineer's estimates.

The program calls for the paving of Ausdale avenue from West Park boulevard to Linden road with asphalt, while Bartley avenue from Glessner avenue to Parkview street and Willis avenue from First to Arch street will be surfaced with concrete.

Ausdale Job Costs $12,727.

The contract for improving Ausdale avenue was awarded to the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company whose bid was $12,727. The George B. Herring and Son company submitted the other proposal, $12,857.

The Herring company, only other bidder, was awarded both the Bartley avenue and the Willis avenue contracts. On the Bartley avenue project Herring submitted a price of $6,735 which was approximately $600 lower than the Mansfield Asphalt bid of $7,372. On Willis avenue Herring's bid was $3,549 as compared with a bid of $3,886 submitted by the Mansfield Asphalt.

Both firms are expected to start work, which will include the grading of all three roadways, within the next two weeks.

City council at its June 7 meeting authorized the issuance of $26,600 in bonds to finance the property owners' share. The city's share of $6,000 will be paid from the automobile registration fee fund.

LIGHTING OK'D

Council Renews Assessments on North Main Whiteway.

Legislation calling for the renewal of the whiteway lighting assessments on North Main street from Fifth street to Olive street for a period of nine years was approved by city council last night.

The measure calls for the renewal of a charge of 34 cents per foot frontage.

Council also approved a resolution requesting the county commissioners to include the streets of Mansfield in its plans and specifications for the blanket county-wide WPA bridge and street project with the city to pay the sponsors share of the projects which are to be within the city.

Supplemental appropriations of $7,550 from the unappropriated gasoline tax funds for various street improvements was also approved.

A petition from the Liberty park association seeking exclusive rights to maintain and operate concessions at Liberty park was referred to the parks committee.

GEN. JOHNSON:

Joan of Arc Had Better Chance Than Truth At Forthcoming 'Inquiries'

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—Three important summer investigations are about to begin under the almost unlimited power of congressional inquisition. That power is to examine into the affairs of men or institutions which are under criticism at the bar of public opinion. Sometimes the verdict plus the disclosures of the trial result in what is in practical effect a sentence of economic pains and penalties or even death.

But in these trials the accused has none of the defensive rights guaranteed in almost every other system of justice. They are conducted by committees, usually composed of congressmen but, in one of these cases, also composed of and now sure to be dominated by executive officers.

These are the judges who arrive at the verdict. They are also the prosecutors, if not the accusers.

Nobody ever heard of that kind of arrangement in any accepted system of justice.

* * *

The accused can't call any witnesses or confront or cross-examine any witnesses against him. If what he says in his own defense is not acceptable to the inquisition, it can tell him to sit down and shut up. If he refuses to answer, the committee can send him to jail for contempt.

This also conforms to no other recognized system of justice.

Finally, there is no pretense that the judges are impartial. They are politicians seeking to use these extraordinary powers, not primarily to produce a review of all pertinent facts, but primarily to bolster their own particular political pretensions by bringing out all the facts that serve that end and supressing or minimizing all others. In one of these inquisitions they are not only politicians, but dogmatic administrative zealots, intent on taking apart the American economic pattern and putting it together again on some modified form of European collectivism.

* * *

They will use their inquisitional power not to inquire whether this should be done, but only to argue that it must be done. The truth has less chance before these three coming summer inquisitions than Joan of Arc in her trial and execution before the Bishop of Beauvais.

They are being hastened onto the stage in the heat of the bitterest political campaign of recent years. It is not the subject of these inquiries which are really to be tried before the public. It is the pretensions of the inquisitors themselves. Does anybody suppose they are not going to acquit themselves and convict all opposition?

* * *

This political three-ring circus has in ring one the TVA inquisition, entirely dominated by Third New Dealers. The Third New Deal is violently and repeatedly on record as idolizing TVA and condemning its opponents. It is certain to be a bath of whitewash for TVA and of mud for its opponents.

In ring three is the political investigation of misuse of relief funds, especially under WPA. It is also smothered under New Deal domination and influence. It is literally impossible to suppose that there will be any revelation or, indeed, any actual procedure.

The scintillating middle ring—the "monopoly" investigation—is a mass production of witch-finding with a St. Bartholomew's massacre of all business opponents of the Third New Deal at the end.

* * *

Here congress clearly abdicated its own control to the executive by giving the president disposition of 80 per cent of the appropriation. It surrendered its own peculiar and exclusive inquisitional power to the executive—who otherwise has it not—by opening the way to appointment of five fanatical anti-business executive officials and adding to them two anti-business senators and one anti-business representative—a holy inquisition of the American economic system packed 8 to 3 against it.

It will be exactly like 8 minks turned loose in an unprotected chicken coop.

It is a prostitution of the proper functions of government and a failure to produce essential facts on vital issues at a crisis in our history.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Families with various mental screws loose have cavorted upon the screen too freely for several years now as part of the insane comedy cycle. Erratic mamas and balmy papas, surrounded by helter-skelter children in varying stages of insoucient dizziness, motivated film after film until the public, loving it at first, finally said "Enough."

The prize play, "You Can't Take It With You," set Columbia studios back $200,000 when it was purchased last year—when studios were still buying plays at such fancy prices. The play concerns a rather extraordinary family, and conceivably, if it were photographed as it was played on the stage, might be just another nutty comedy of the waning cycle. (Last worthy specimen, "Merrily We Live.")

* * *

But Director Frank Capra and Writer Robert Riskin, as usual on the stories they adapt, have done things to the play. New treatments on successful stage plays (or novels) used to be considered cinematic high-hardedness, but nowadays even the playwrights seldom object. Especially when the team of Capra and Riskin is performing the operation.

These two had a short story called "Night Bus" as a foundation for "It Happened One Night," and after that one most authors—playwrights, too—were glad to get them twist things around a bit from their original state. "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" increased their stature, and "Lost Horizon" did not hurt it, although many were disappointed in the picture as compared to James Hilton's novel.

Thh principal change in approach to this play seems to be a greater emphasis on the philosophy expressed in the title—unless one counts the inclusion of a new character, one Mr. Poppins, being played by Donald Meek. Mr. Poppins is merely one more nose snatched from an office grindstone by Lionel Barrymore's Grandpa Vanderhof, but he's in for a purpose which should be one of the picture's better laughs.

* * *

Adding to the original $200,000 story investment, Capra has assembled one of his usual casts. Usual for Capra means actors to fit the characters, and in some cases expensive names which have had star billing. Besides Barrymore, Jean Arthur and James Stewart, he has Ann Miller (the heroine of "Radio City Revels") and Edward Arnold, Mischa Auer, Spring Byington (mama of the "Jones Family") and Halliwell Hobbes. Even one of the stare of "The Green Pastures"—the Noah—is present in the person of Eddie Anderson.

While "You Can't Take It With You" is well along, the screen's most expensive story purchase from the stage is just getting started. "Room Service" cost RWO $255,000, and is in the hands of the Marxes and Director William Seiter.

While the stage comedy is being revamped for Marxian use, the usual procedure is reversed because the changes in the play will be small compared to the changes in the Marxes.

Groucho, for instance, will forsake his big painted mustache for a real one, home-grown, and Chico will attempt to conform to character instead of pursuing his own mad devices. For a while there was a plan to make Harpo break his silence—beating Chaplin to the talkie draw—but this was abandoned. There are points, apparently, beyond which the defilers of tradition dare not go.

The way to keep a steady job in pictures is to start off one of these series things. Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane appeared in the first of the Torchy Blane talkies, but were let off contract for subsequent "Torchies" in which other actors were used. Now the Warner lot has them back—by popular demand—but meanwhile the "U" has capitalized on the teaming by using them both in "Walls of San Quentin" . . . .

'FIGHT MOB' REGARDS LOUIS AS VIRTUAL CINCH TO TRIUMPH

By Brietz

BAER SIGNED FOR TITLE MATCH WITH TONIGHT'S WINNER.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (AP) — Contracts for a Max Baer vs. Schmeling or Louis match in September were drawn up late yesterday by Mike Jacobs and Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager. . . . Barney Ross, who retired after the Armstrong fight, still is getting offers to enter the ring. . . . All are being declined. . . . "Dumb Dan" Morgan, former fight manager, who is uncanny at picking winners, made a belated appearance at the Hippodrome yesterday and chose Max Schmeling.

Johnny Vander Meer is getting a lot of attention here. . . . Bell hops at the McAlpin adopted an agreement not to accept tips from the no-hit star. . . . Tomorrow afternoon there'll be home plate ceremonies at the Polo Grounds where Johnny will be made a colonel on the staff of the governor of Florida and presented with a suitable gift by Frank Winchell, Tampa hotel tycoon, in whose town Johnny did his spring prepping. . . . Rumors that Bill McKechnie asked waivers on Vander Meer when he allowed Boston four blows the other day were denied.

Up-state gossip has it that Babe Ruth was installed in the Dodger organization by the bankers and soon will be announced as part owner. . . . Ed Leader and Tom Bolles, Yale and Harvard rowing coaches, graduated from the same school and have been living near each other at New London while their boats trained for the last Yale-Harvard race and this one, but have never spoken.

Just to give you an idea that Barney Ross meant it when he said he was through with boxing, he won't even come down from Ferndale (where he is playing golf) to see Louis and Schmeling tonight.

SOUTHERN and Southeastern conference football coaches are getting ready to gang up on Tom Yawkey and his coaching staff. . . . The Sox have just grabbed off Randy Heflin of Fredericksburg, W. Va., who not only is one of the best backfield prospects in the South, but is something of a sensation on the rubber as well. . . . In two years of high school chucking he averaged 13 strikeouts, four hits and two runs a game.

Indians Even Take Ruffing in Stride

CLEVELAND—(UP)—For the first time in two years the Cleveland Indians today has scored a victory at the expense of Charley (Red) Ruffing, the right-handed ace of the world champion New York Yankees' pitching staff.

The Indians beat Ruffing and his Yankee mates 10 to 5 here yesterday in the first game of the crucial series. The triumph enabled Cleveland to increase its league lead to two full games over Boston and 2½ over New York.

Win In Seventh.

Ruffing had a 5 to 4 lead going into the final half of the seventh inning, but couldn't halt the bats of the determined Indians. They shelled him from the box with a six-run splurge in this round.

The big seventh inning was started when Lyn Lary doubled. Campbell was out, but a single by Sammy Hale drove home the tying run. A bad throw by Joe DiMaggio on the return to the infield and a wild pitch moved Hale around to third. Jeff Heath walked, Earl Averill doubled, Trosky walked and Ken Keltner singled. With three runs in and the bases full, Manager Joe McCarthy decided to permit Ruffing to pitch to Rollie Hemsley. The Indian catcher promptly doubled to clean the bases.

Feller gave the Yankees only seven hits, but was forced to work his way out of numerous jams because of his wildness. The Iowa schoolboy walked nine men.

New York garnered three runs in the third when Feller walked three men and the runners came home on a single and an infield out. The other two Yankee runs were made in the seventh on three singles and an intentional pass.

Collect 14 Hits.

The Indians' attack was good for 14 hits, with all players except Trosky and Feller sharing in it. Hemsley set the pace with three safeties.

A near-record mid-week crowd of 60,000 fans was expected to see the Indians and Yanks in their double-header at the stadium today. Johnny Allen and either Mel Harder or Earl Whitehill were to work for Cleveland, with Lefty Gomez and Monte Pearson pitching for New York.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK — (AP) — The fight that has overshadowed all else in the fistic world for two years comes true at 9 o'clock (EST) tonight, when Joe Louis, the 24-year-old Alabama colored boy, defends his heavyweight championship against Max Schmeling, the 32-year-old German ex-champion, at the Yankee stadium.

A crowd of 80,000 is expected to pack into the famous baseball arena when the two gladiators shuffle out to meet each other under the bright, hot lights. The throng will have paid close to $1,000,000 to watch the pair belabor each other for 15 rounds, or less in the event of a knockout.

Two sons of the president, a cabinet minister, and celebrities of every stripe will be there to watch the bland German try to repeat the knockout he scored over Louis two Junes ago in the same arena, and to witness the efforts of the young champion to remove that one blot from his escutcheon.

Louis remains the 1 to 2 favorite in one of the biggest betting fights of recent years, and is the choice of a majority of several hundred experts. The so-called "fight mob" regards Louis as a virtual cinch, and Promoter Mike Jacobs is hoping fervently that the title remains in this country.

The two big men, who have no affection for each other, met at Madison Square Garden at noon, to weigh in and have their respective pulses clocked by the commission medicine man, Dr. William Walker.

Louis, in addition to being eight years younger than his opponent, is a little taller and heavier, though not enough to matter.

It was reported that speculators were getting as much as $100 for choice ringside chairs, originally priced at $30. There is no prospect of a sell-out.

Schmeling won one small victory before they entered the ring. The boxing commission recognized his demand that Louis not be permitted to wear the Chicago, or "big-thumb" glove that the champion has favored in his recent fights. Both will have their ham-like hands encased in six-ounce Everlast mitts, buttressed by plenty of bandage and tape.

For the first time in this country, Little Joe Jacobs will not be in the German's corner, the commission having refused to restore Joe's license as a second. Nothing bothers Max except the fact that he has to pay both U. S. and German income tax on his purse, which will be 20 per cent of the net. Louis will receive the champion's customary 40 per cent.

The probability is that Arthur Donovan again will be the referee, though the choice, like that of the two judges, will not be known until the fighters are in the ring.

It might be a great right. It should be. There is every element that goes to make a furious, dramatic encounter, including an intense desire for revenge on the part of Louis. He feels that Schmeling caught him in 1936 before he had matured, when he was little more than a cocksure kid.

The sort of battle it will be depends almost entirely upon Louis. He has been growling for several weeks that he will spring from his stool and sink Schmeling under a fusillade of blows. If he tries to do that, the explosion should be heard in Green Points, and the ring will be filled with large, falling bodies.

Schmeling, with his right that shocks like an elephant gun, want nothing better. He figures he is certain to down any fighter who comes to him throwing punches. If Louis charges full-bent, the result probably will be known in the first minute. If he takes Max's right, shakes it off and continues to unleash his terrible hooks, then the German's ring career has closed after 14 years.

Despite Joe's fiery talk of late, though, there is widespread doubt that he will continue so hot-headed in the cool of this evening. It simply is not his style.

German Challenger

Few Ever Come Back To Win Re-Matches

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

JOE LOUIS has a chance to beat Max Schmeling in the Yankee stadium tonight.

But, as we see it, the only way he can accomplish it is by hitting Schmeling first. And, we mean, hard.

If the defending champion is unable to do this, he will walk out of the ring tonight minus his coveted diadem.

It cannot be denied that Louis is a great fighter, but it appears to us that Schmeling has the perfect style to beat Louis. He also has the courage, the patience and the punch.

Schmeling will have the psychological edge, while Louis will have the added burden of defending the championship with nothing to gain but revenge for the beating he absorbed two years ago.

The German's determination to recapture lost honors cannot be discounted in the analysis of the fight, although no former champion has ever regained the title in modern mittfare.

Whatever edge Louis' age will give him will be offset by Schmeling's experience and courage we believe.

* * *

IN REVIEWING the enormity of Louis' task tonight, it might be mentioned that few fighters beaten as badly as Louis was by Schmeling have come back to win a rematch.

One of the exceptions was Stanley Ketchell, who regained it three months after absorbing a terrific whipping while losing it to Billy Papke.

On the other hand, no fighter has ever become a greater fighter until he has taken at least one good licking, they say in the fight game. Joe has had his. Maybe it has made him. We, for one, doubt it.

Hi-Speeds Sign Colored Outfit

The Mansfield Hi-Speeds will be gunning for their fifth straight victory and seventh win of the season Sunday when they tackle the White Sox, outstanding Cleveland semi-pro colored club, at league park.

The Hi-Speeds, fresh from an impressive 5 to 4 triumph over the touted Canton Moose club last week, will send Petey Beer to the mound against the Clevelanders.

DE LUXE CABS HANG UP FOURTH STRAIGHT WIN

The undefeated DeLuxe Cabs registered their fourth softball victory yesterday when they defeated the Dominion Electrics, 10 to 3, behind Ted Frisbee's tight pitching at Prospect park. Frisbee only allowed six hits in the seven innings he pitched, and struck out seven.

Morgan and Schaffer collected three hits apiece for the Cabs. Judy and Forman hit home runs.

Three of City On Mitt Card

Carbetta, Clemens, Glover to Fight Friday Night.

Only three Mansfield boys will have places on the "Parade of Champions" outdoor boxing show to be staged at the Friendly House Friday night.

They are Paul Carbetta, Tom Clemens and Beauford Glover. All of the other performers will represent Crestline, Ashland, Marion, Bellevue, Norwalk and Mt. Vernon stables, Mike Wentz, who with Johnny Villella, is promoting the show, announced today.

Carbetta, who holds the district bantamweight title, will meet Frank Dolce of Crestline, and Clemens, district featherweight champion, will engage Walt Kennedy of Ashland. Glover's opponent will be Roy Howman of Ashland.

A total of 11 bouts will be staged on the card to be held on the playground adjacent to the Friendly House buildings.

Mansfield Trotter Sets World's Record.

King Vagabond, four-year-old trotter owned by Roy Dickson and E. S. Nail, established a new world trotting record on a half mile track when he traveled the Canfield oval in 2:13½ minutes during the Ohio Short Ship meeting there Monday evening. The former record of 2:14 was held by Jane Allen, an Illinois trotter, at Canton last year.

VAULT, BISSMAN TEAMS TANGLE AT POSSUM RUN

The two top teams in The New-Journal Class B golf league will tangle at Possum Run Thursday. They are the Mansfield Metal Vaults and Bissman company. The Vaults lead the Bissman foursome by one point.

The News-Journal meets Al's Kicks, Auxter Motors face O. P. S., and Elks tackle Central Fruit in the other matches.

Clem McCarthy for the round action and Ed Thorgensen for the in-between microphoning are all set for tonight's broadcast of the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling fight.

Schedules call for a broadcast start at 9 o'clock, with available stations of the combined WEAF-WJZ-NBC networks hooked into the ringside.

Chase Servis Over Scioto

COLUMBUS — (AP) — A field of 132 "simon pures" started in pursuit of Bob Servis of Dayton today at Scioto Country club with only a forlorn hope of preventing him from capturing his fourth medal in six years in the qualifying rounds of the annual Ohio amateur golf championship.

To keep Servis out of the king row the pack had Bob's blazing putter, tradition, and a three-stroke handicap to overcome. Servis shot his way to a par-crashing 70 yesterday in the opening half of the qualifier, the day's lone subpar round.

In second place were Dan Carmichael and Allen Rankin of Columbus, with a brace of 37's.

THEATER

WALTER WANGER, who has produced several hits in the time he has been making pictures under his own name, has given the two leading roles in "Personal History" to Henry Fonda and Louise Platt. Casting the picture was a ticklish job, for thousands have read this autobiographical story of Vincent Sheean and have their own idea of the principals. Sheean is a New York newspaper man and his story is the story of thousands of young men and women of today who find no place for their youth, ambition and training. Miss Platt will be remembered for her work in "I Met My Love Again," and "Spawn of The North."

War In Spain Shown.

"Blockade," the Walter Wanger production which recently made its American debut (and simultaneously in England) brought its produced menacing and threatening letters from foreign military and political figures. Wanger, who was an attache of the American delegation to the peace conference at Versailles, made the picture with a purpose: to expose the tactics that make war by menas of progaganda. He chose the present Civil war in Spain, although being careful that his uniforms did not directly name either side in the conflict. Foreigners working on the picture reported certain speeches and scenes to European war-makers and Wanger was asked to make drastic changes in his script This he refused to do and in retaliation the picture was barred from several European countries. The story is told through the eyes of a peace-loving boy and the woman who was his ideal — Henry Fonda and Madelinene Carroll. Leo Carrillo and John Halliday are featured in "Blockade" opening at the Ohio Thursday.

Visual Education.

Jack Skirball, producer of "The Birth of a Baby" believes that his daring picture will open the way for the dramatization of other educational features, of subjects that are constantly being lectured about but never seem to get across. "The old Chinese proverb still holds," Skirball said of his picture, "that one picture is worth 10,000 words. Visual education is just getting started. It is more entertaining than dry lectures and leaves a deeper impression than so-called book learning." While "Birth of a Baby," current attraction at the Madison this week, is entertaining, it is also educational, visualizing the pre-natal development of a child from early pregnancy until its birth The training of the mother and father in the rudiments of parenthood runs concurrently with the dramatic story.

Star Goes to War.

The lovely Madelene Carroll may lead a conservative private life as the wife of an English army officer, but as an actress her various roles take her to strange places and into fearsome adventures. Two of her pictures are current in Mansfield this week; in one she barely escapes death in the war in Spain, and in "The General Died at Dawn" at the Majestic, she comes closer to death in war-torn China. In both pictures she innocently carries dangerous military secrets to the enemy, so that she really is lucky to get off with her life. In the Majestic film it is Gary Cooper who shares the lady's danger. The theater is also offering Bing Crosby's musical film, "Waikiki Wedding."

Chan Trips Himself.

Charlie Chan, super detective of fiction and the screen, trips up in "Charlie Chan at Monte Carlo" and gets arrested for murder himself. So that his acute powers of detection are called into play for two purposes. to clear himself and to maintain his reputation as the great Chinese detective. Chan is played by Warner Oland and his "No. 1 Son" by Key Luke. There are several murders at the famous gambling casino and a number of persons are under suspicion, but in the end Chan solves the almost impenetrable mystery. The Ritz offers the Chan mystery story and the last of the Mae West pictures, "Every Day's A Holiday," as its bill today.

Shows Outdoor Movies.

An interesting feature of entertainment at Walton lake this season, is the free outdoor movies which will be shown every Thursday night, starting tomorrow night. The resort is located three and a half miles east of Crestline, just off route 30N. Pictures will be shown on a large outdoor screen, and in addition to the feature, there will be a comedy, short subjects and a "thriller" serial. The resort caters to family groups offering bathing facilities, tennis and fishing

GROTTO READY

Pre-Convention Ceremonial to Be Held Here Friday.

A pre-convention ceremonial in preparation for the state Grotto convention to be held next week in Cleveland, will be conducted Friday evening by Baku Grotto at Grotto hall.

The ceremonial will be in charge of the officers. Plans are being made for about 500 members of Baku Grotto to go to Cleveland for the convention and to attend the "Festival of Beauty and Fire," to be staged by the convention June 29.

The festival program will include gymnastic demonstrations by some 2,500 men and women, a "Festival of the Homelands," which will bring together representatives of every nationality in Cleveland, dressed in their native costumes

Highlight of the program will be the "Pageant of Beauty," in which final judging in a city and state-wide beauty contest will be held.

LOW DODGE TRUCK PRICES
Put Dodge Quality Within Reach of Every Truck Buyer Right Now!

"RIGHT NOW is the best time in history to buy a new Dodge truck," say thousands of smart buyers. Dodge trucks today are priced down with the lowest yet include all the famous Dodge extra-quality features. These features often effect such big economies that many assert the "savings take care of a good share of the monthly payments...especially when the old truck was worth a lot more in trade today on a new Dodge than I expected." It will surprise you to learn how easy it is to buy a new Dodge truck. See your Dodge dealer now!

THE PRESIDENT, according to the New York Times, pronounces his name "Rose-uh-velt." But there have been a lot of Republicans who, for the last six years have insisted on pronouncing his name "Rose-(Huh-uh)-velt."

However, F. D. R. can be certain that no American, admirer or otherwise, or any other contemporary throughout the world ever will refer to him as "Rose-Who?-velt."

Now that a play ("Golden Boy") about a boy who couldn't decide whether to become a prize fighter or a violinist has been a success, we may confidently await the appearance of a thrilling drama about a youth who couldn't make up his mind whether to play first bass for the Metropolitan Opera or the New York Yankees.

A large chain candy store organization reports a handsome income. Shucks! Just as though it isn't natural for a bon-bon business to have, not only heavy sugar, but a sweet return.

An American explorer, first in half a century, has climbed to the peaks of Mount Cotopaxi in Ecuador. It's the world's highest active volcano. However, reports have it he found Cotopaxi not half as dangerous as an average rabble rouser.

The British government now plans to count all trees within its domain. That's encouraging news. The last word we had from London was that the government wanted to count all those who not yet had been given a gas mask.

OPENS DRIVE TO PUT PARK BOARD PLAN ON BALLOT

C. of C. Committee Convenes Tonight, Seeks Signatures of 2,000 Electors.

Acting to place the question of creating a non-partisan park commission on the ballot at the November election, the parks and city beautification committee of the Chamber of Commerce will meet tonight to launch its drive to obtain the signatures of 2,000 qualified voters on an initiative petition.

The committee, with G. V. Sowers as chairman, will discuss plans of circulating the petitions to get the required number of signatures. Only about 900 are necessary but an effort will be made to obtain 2,000, chamber officials said.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the chamber said action to place the question before the electorate was approved by the board of directors of the chamber May 10, on the recommendation of the parks committee, which proposed creation of the park commission as the best means of bringing about the immediate rehabilitation of Mansfield public parks.

Mayor Would Name Board.

Should the plan be approved by the voters, the mayor would be empowered to appoint a three-man board for terms of one, two and three years.

Such a commission would have complete control over the city parks and would be able to condemn property, dedicate streets and boulevards and have the appointing authority now vested in the city service-safety director.

Funds for park improvements come from tax revenues and would be appropriated by council, as is the case at present.

The wording of the petitions asks: "Shall there be a board of park commissioners for the city of Mansfield, Ohio, as provided for and empowered by Sections No. 4053 to No. 4063, both inclusive, of the General Code."

The petitions need the signatures of five per cent of the qualified electors in the city.

101 IN O. S. R. GIVEN PAROLES

2 Ashland County Inmates Among Latest Group to Be Released.

Two Ashland county inmates were among the 101 at the Mansfield reformatory to be granted paroles by the Ohio board of parole, dispatches from Columbus said today. The board continued the cases of 67 other applicants.

The Ashland inmates to be paroled are Floyd Purdy, 21, who will be released Sept. 1, and Aubrey Boterf, 21, to be paroled Aug. 1.

Purdy was received at the reformatory June 22, 1937 and is under sentence from one to 20 years on a manslaughter charge. Boterf is serving a one to seven year sentence for grand larceny. He was received at the institution June 29, 1937.

BETTING BRISK

NEW YORK —(INS)— Broadway bookmakers today quoted 9 to 5 on Joe Louis to beat Max Schmeling in their title fight tonight.

Schmeling supporters could get 8½ to 5 if they were willing to do a little shopping.

Prices on a knockout varied with the bookie. One big operation was quoting even money on Louis to win by a knock-out. Betting was reported brisk.

FIRST LUTHERAN PICNIC THURSDAY

Church and Sunday School Outing Set for South Park.

The annual church and Sunday school picnic of the First Lutheran congregation will be held Thursday afternoon and evening at South park.

A program of games and contests for women and children will be held at 4:30 p. m., and a picnic supper will be served at 6:30 p. m. A feature of the evening program will be a kittenball game for men between two teams picked from the congregation.

WRANGLES OVER SALE OF BONDS

Council Debates Two Hours Before Selling Issue to Richland Trust Bank.

Emmons, Arthur L. Croak, Lester D. Hunter and Fred Miller. The absent member was James E. Crum, who was out of the city on business.

Before the eight councilmen voted, they heard Berno discuss the two bids. He pointed out that a taxpayer's suit might result and enjoin the sale, pointing out that if his firm did not think they were justly treated in the matter of the award of the contract, their recourse would be to file suit.

"You are anxious to obtain the funds as quickly as possible," Berno told council, "in order that the Woodland water project may be started by July 1. It may be true that the Richland Trust company can supply the bond money within a week, but we can also furnish the funds inside of three or four days."

He added that it would, however, require additional financing through the issuance of short term notes at a low rate of interest pending the arrival of the money from the bonds.

Berno told council that his father (William Berno, who operates a store at 13 North Park street) was a taxpayer in Mansfield, and in the interests of the taxpayers of the community he might be compelled to file action with the court to enjoin the sale.

Kelley Answers.

City Auditor Kelley said the firm probably did not appreciate the fact that the sale was being made in order to start the project at once without any further delay.

"I still think the issuance of mortgage revenue bonds is a lousy piece of financing," Kelley said, "but it will place at least 100 men to work immediately and it behooves us to act at once.

"There is no question but that we have a first class product to sell or two local banking firms would not have submitted unconditional bids."

He explained that the unconditional bid would eliminate certain costs and complications that would result through awarding the contract to the Johnson-Kase firm.

He was joined by City Designing Engineer A. M. Mock who explained to council that contracts for the materials on the project were still waiting for payment before delivery.

As the discussion continued, Councilman Shultz called for a 30-minute recess.

"This gentleman said something about court action and threatened us and I would like to have a recess in order to clear up a few points," Shultz told Council President Karl Troll. Troll, who was ill recently, left during the recess.

Berno who was called upon to further explain what he meant by court action, told council in no uncertain terms tht he believed that the city would be abusing its powers if it awarded the contract to the Richland Trust company and that a suit could be filed by either a taxpayer or the firm he represented.

"If the case is thrown out of a Richland county court it could still be taken to the court of appeals and the supreme court if necessary," he stated. "That is the club that the law give in order to see that council makes a just award—do I make myself clear."

Councilmen Kyle, somewhat perturbed by long drawn out discussion threatened to walk out of the meeting.

Council President-pro tem Berg called for order just as the 30 minutes had elapsed and the vote taken after Kyle had requested the roll call. Kyle said he thought the contract should have been awarded to the highest bidder.

The issuance of mortgage revenue bonds against the waterworks dates back to last fall when consideration was given the sale of $225,000 in revenue bonds to finance a more extensive Woodland program.

The present program includes a tank tower and booster pumps in Woodland to bolster the pressure in that area, and a high capacity main from the reservoir to the mercantile section.

COUPLE WED BY PASTOR, JUST 8

Youthful Clergyman Performs His First Marriage Ceremony.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Honeymooning today were Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Hoffman, made man and wife by the treble words of eight-year-old Charles E. Jaynes, jr.

Charles, a round little fellow three feet high, became a member of the clergy a year ago when he was ordained by the International Ministerial federation.

His soprano voice intoned the marriage service—his first—last night at Four Square Gospel church of which his parents are joint pastors. Principals in the ceremony were Miss Florence Brinkman, 21, and Hoffman, two years her senior.

Capital Hears Rail Lines Won't Order Pay Cut July 1.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Spokesmen for the railroad labor unions declared today they held little hope for a "change-of-heart" in the railroads' plan to effect a pay cut. The carriers have announced they will cut wages 15 per cent July 1.

Reports were current here, however, that the pay slash will be postponed until later in the year.

HOW'S YOUR MEMORY? JULY 4TH COLLABORATORS NEED HELP!

Any high school boy knows—or should know—the year that Patrick Henry made his great "give me liberty or give me death" speech and the year that Teddy Roosevelt recruited his picturesque roughriders, but placing the exact time that the "bunny hug" and the "cake walk" made their appearance in America is something else again.

The narrative for the cavalcade of America history which will be presented at the Fairground in connection with the big Fourth of July celebration, is being prepared by Ernest J. Wesson, authority on American history, and Atty. Herbert H. Schettler.

The cavalcade will include the music and dances that belong particularly to America, as well as highlights of history. Research for dates and data have already run into hours of work.

There is no difficulty in writing the narrative for Henry's speech before the Continental Congress; Betsy Ross making the first flag; Washington addressing his soldiers at Valley Forge; Lincoln's Gettysburg speech; the three American wars; the Stephen Foster songs and plantation life; but—

Does anyone know Jenny Lind's favorite song? Where was the can-can introduced? What year brought out "Farewell Daisy Bell" and "Tiptoe Through the Tulips?" Did the then scandalous "bunny-hug" appear before 1910 or after?

If you know the correct answers to any of these, call either of the two collaborators on the historical continuity.

Red Cross Sends Check For China's Civilian Relief

The Richland County Chapter of the Red Cross will meet its quota of $400 on the Chinese civilian relief fund, officials said today after a check was sent to national headquarters which was only $1.85 short of the quota figure.

The check, representing 91 contributors to the fund, was sent today in answer to an appeal to chapters to rush their available contributions. The flood devastation in China has increased the misery and starvation of millions of civilians, it was said.

The Mansfield fund was raised by letters sent to several hundred persons. Shelby accepted and raised a $100 share of the quota. Gertrude B. English, executive secretary, said today that money is still coming in each day and that another check will be forwarded the latter part of next week.

National Red Cross is attempting to raise a million dollars in America, largely for medical supplies and food, for civilian victims of the war.

DEATH DATE SET

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Robert Snow, 27, was condemned by the Ohio supreme court today to die in Ohio penitentiary July 13 for the Jan. 18 slaying of Harriet Deger in Akron.

Snow originally was sentenced to be electrocuted last Friday, but received an indefinite stay pending his appeal to the court, which refused to hear the case on its merits.

Milk Burglars Leave Note Saying They Prefer Chocolate Flavor.

KENOSHA, Wis.—(AP)—Detectives think maybe they have a clue at last to the thief who has been filching bottles of milk from homes in a certain residential area. OK'S PLAN TO BUILD ASHLAND SEWAGE PLANT

Council Gets Report From Engineer Outlining New $160,000 Structure.

ASHLAND — City council here accepted the report of E. D. Barrow, sanitary engineer of Akron, for a new $160,000 general sewage disposal plant, and authorized the city engineer, E. M. Kerr, to submit the preliminary report to the state board of health.

In the report of the Akron engineer, the new system is recommended in order to meet with standards set up by the state board of health, which recently refused plans to enlarge the sewer facilities in this city.

The proposed unit would furnish a new plant and trunk line extension which would have the facilities to serve the 10 per cent of the Ashland population which now have no sewer facilities at all.

It is anticipated that if the project is approved and adopted by the city council, there remain two methods to finance it. If the municipality decides to finance the project, it will cost $160,000, and would mean that there would have to be a bond issue floated to cover the expenses.

As tentative plans are talked of now, it is likely that if the plan is carried through, it will be as a PWA project, providing that the grant may be obtained. The cost as a PWA project would be $172,000.

The new plant, said to be satisfactory for the needs of a city of 16,000 people, would be constructed east of Ashland in a new site, and it is claimed would be more efficient than the plant now in use.

ANSWER DATE SET

ASHLAND — Fifteen days in which to answer charges of permitting the pollution of a stream has been given to the city of Ashland, defendant in a $2,500 damage suit in common pleas court.

The suit, on the court docket for some time, was filed by Daniel E. Stone of Montgomery township who claims that the city permitted the pollution of a stream on his land, causing damages in loss to property and livestock.

In the legal battle so far, the city demurrered to the charges, but the pleading was overruled, and the court directed defendants to file new answer within 15 days.

OPEN FIRST AID POST TONIGHT

New Emergency Station West of City Ninth In County.

A new emergency highway first aid station will be added to the Red Cross chain of eight in the county, when the Boyer station, on route 30N at the intersection of the Shelby-Ontario roads, is formally opened to the public at 7 p. m. Wednesday.

Station attendants and residents in that vicinity have been trained in first aid by the Red Cross, and medical supplies and equipment for first aid have been installed in an emergency cabinet at the station. The new station was located at this crossroad because of the number of accidents that occur there.

The formal dedication, with Roy R. Spetka, Red Cross chapter chairman, as speaker, will be open to the public.

BOY, 6, VICTOR IN BIKE RACE

Store Awards Prizes for Best Decorated Vehicles.

Six-year-old Ronnie Nelson, of 198½ North Mulberry street, yesterday walked off with the first prize of $5 in merchandise for the best decorated bicycle in the first annual bike parade sponsored by the sporting department of the Montgomery-Ward company.

Dressed all in white with his tiny bicycle trimmed in white crepe paper, Ronnie pedalled to victory as he brought up the rear of the procession of 15 youngsters in the parade through the downtown section.

June Eilk, 13, of 37 Buckingham street, was awarded second prize of $3 in merchandise. Third prize went to Donald Arnold, 14, 200 Lida street, who received $2 in merchandise.

CLUB SENDS 3

Hi-Y Group Names Delegates for Annual Congress.

Three Hi-Y club members from the 15th Hi-Y district, which includes Mansfield, will represent the district at the second annual Hi-Y congress to be held June 25 to 29 at Berea, Ky.

Delegates from the 15th district are Harold Grady of Wooster, Paul Ulrichs of Mt. Vernon, and Robert Emmer of Crestline.

Some 1,100 high school students, representing schools throughout the United States are expected to attend the five-day congress at Berea.

Branch Rickey, business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals' baseball team, again this year will act as chairman of the congress.

Sees Little Chance Of Taking Relief 'Out of Politics'

Discussion of Ohio's relief problems preceded the talk on "Petty Rackets," given at Tuesday's Rotary club meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel by Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce.

Touching on insistent demands of a number of large cities for state funds to provide for relief needs, Williams warned against a growing inclination to regard large relief expenditures as a permanent requirement and advised that the real remedy should be found in providing opportunities for work rather than dependence on charity.

He also expressed fear that it will be impossible to "take relief out of politics," as is sometimes proposed.

Telling of various kinds of "petty rackets" that are worked in Mansfield, and other cities, from time to time, Williams related a number of specific instances in which residents have been swindled by smooth-tongued house to house canvassers. He also told of how local organizations are sometimes inveigled into sponsoring questionable schemes in the hope of making money for some worthy purpose.

Herbert R. Slough was chairman of the meeting at which W. L. Miller presided.

ROPER PREDICTS BUSINESS GAIN DURING SUMMER

'Economic Skies Definitely Clearing,' Secretary Says in Statement.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary Roper said today business statistics indicated a business and industrial upturn was likely this summer or at least by fall.

"Economic skies are definitely clearing," the secretary said in a prepared statement to the press.

"Many wise business leaders are now taking and all should take advantage of the summer season to implement their plans and methods for participation in the inevitable and now forming forward movement.

"Announcement has been made of large sums to be expended for plant expansion and improvement under the realization that where no wealth is created, none can be accumulated nor distributed. Bumper farm crops are beginning to move as reflected by rising demands for transportation. Credit is abundant and available.

Gradual Increase.

"The merchant, the wholesaler and the manufacturer should prepare now to turn with the tide in order to avoid lost motion in the upward swing. I, therefore, am encouraged by the factors above enumerated and look to aroused initiative which will bring a gradual and not a dangerously accelerated business, industrial and economic upturn."

The commerce secretary said among the encouraging factors in the economic situation were the reduction of excess inventories in the hands of retailers and wholesalers and the removal of legislative uncertainties by the adjournment of congress.

Roper announced that a survey of wholesalers' stocks showed inventories on June 1 were 14.5 per cent lower than a year ago, removing a major obstacle to increased factory production. The decrease in inventories has amounted to 9 per cent since early February, he said, and the only wholesale line in which inventories are higher is the heavy hardware business. He added:

"Since wholesalers inventories are the most important single measure of accumulated stocks in the hands of business, these figures clearly indicate that excess inventories, as one cause of the present depression, have been largely removed."

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

WE PLANTED our soy beans. Early in the morning the hired man drove the tractor, with an eight-foot disk drill attached, into the field. The hopper of the drill was filled with the small round seed beans, which had been dusted with inoculator . . . for in ground that has not grown soy beans before, certain necessary bacteria must be added to insure a crop.

All day the planter, like some giant ant, went round and round the field, pausing at every circuit, at first, to refill the planter with seeds. The twelve discs, each with a small hose where the seeds fell into the ground, make a swath twelve rows wide. The birds—blackbirds, grackles, and robins—follow the moist trail at a safe distance to capture any unwary worm or beetle.

After a time the distance around the field became short enough so that one filling of the hopper would seed two rounds. Clouds began to pile up in the west. It was late afternoon, with still 20 rounds to go.

Some men like to finish a job. Our man said, "Bring me something to eat, out here, and I'll keep her running. It's going to rain."

We brought him sandwiches. He ate them while we replenished his seed, and refilled and watered his tractor. Then he was off again. The shadows of the hedge were long upon the smooth slopes. The sun went down with beautiful show of color, upon the high-piled clouds. A warm wind blew from the south.

As in some Marathon, the grimy figure rode his mechanical steed. The beans rattled into the ground. The strip of unplanted earth grew narrower and narrower. We stayed to see the finish. It was not quite dark when the last round was completed.

Respectfully, we followed the tired man and his clattering tools home to the barn.

HEART ON HER SLEEVE

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

(Copyright, 1938)

CHAPTER I.

WITHOUT warning, it seemed, the clouds over Broadway opened up and poured torrents of water down on the scurrying theater-going crowds.

Sharp flashes of terrifying lightning, followed by deafening crashes of thunder, cleared the streets of pedestrians in a few seconds.

Only the taxi drivers smiled at nature's sudden fury. Inching their way along the crowded canyons of the metropolis they hoped, and perhaps prayed a little, that the shower would end in a steady week-end downpour.

Jed Patrick, a block from his room in the upper Forties, off the White Way, dashed into a handy doorway because he prized highly the one good suit that covered his long, lean frame.

Whistling softly, Jed took off his hat and shook the big drops from its brim before putting it back on his head. Then the young man leaned back and sniffed at the cooling air, grateful that it would break for a little while the terrific late June heat wave that for several days had held New York in an intolerable grip.

With a terrific crash that seemed to shake the world, another blast of thunder and lightning roared overhead, and Jed reached out and caught a young woman who, with a stifled scream, ran terror-stricken into the doorway. It was as though the elements had catapulted her into his arms.

"Oh," she gasped when the tight grasp of the strange young man had steadied her "I—didn't see you."

She was small and very frightened, and Jed spoke to her as he would to a child

"Don't you bother apologizing, little lady. I was just wishin' somebody would come along and keep me company. Nobody likes to be alone in a storm like this"

In the light from the street and the lightning flashes, they faced each other, the large man who had gallantly removed his hat and the small bedraggled girl. Her voice shook a little when she laughed. The man's smile was as reassuring as his warm southern drawl.

"Now this is funny!" He looked down at her quizzically. "I've heard plenty of times about it rainin' cats and dogs But bless me, if I ever heard tell of it rainin' young ladies!"

The girl's laugh was steadier when she replied, "Oh, it's liable to rain almost anything on Broadway!"

Another sharp flash of lightning made the girl cringe, but she made no outcry.

"Down where I come from," the young man drawled then, "it doesn't seem to me the rain is quite so wet. You're soaked through to the skin, aren't you, little lady?"

"I feel slightly damp." She clasped her hands over her arms and shivered. "I think my teeth are going to chatter in a minute."

Jed said, concerned, "You'll be gettin' sick My room is just down the street here a block If you won't think I'm being too familiar on such short acquaintance, I'd be very glad to have you come down and get dried off a bit before you go home. Do you live far from here?"

* * *

The girl hesitated She couldn't very well, under the circumstances, tell him home had been in Brooklyn, but that there was no home to go to now. So she said, "I live over the river in Brooklyn."

"Would you like to get your clothes dry before you go back?" Jed asked.

He seemed like the sort of chap whose feelings would be hurt if she refused. Besides, who, the girl thought bitterly, would be interested in her anyway in an old faded dress, with her hair in strings and not a drop of make-up on her face in weeks

"Yes, I'll go," she said "Thank you. It's let up now Maybe we can make a run for it"

* * *

Taking her hand, and sheltering her as best he could with his coat, Jed hurried the dripping young woman down the block and up the brown stone steps that led to his rooming house.

His room was on the ground floor down a long hall, and once inside he turned on the light and faced her with his wide boyish smile.

"Well, here we are! This is once I'm glad there's a fireplace. I've a few sticks of wood and some newspapers."

The girl took off her red hat and hung it gingerly over the radiator.

"The fire will feel nice after the soaking I got! But I hate to put you to so much trouble"

The young man squatted down and put some sticks in the fireplace.

"Haven't you ever," he looked up, "heard of Southern hospitality, little lady? Why, down where I came from us boys just go around all day long lookin' for young ladies to try our Southern hospitality out on."

"I get it!" the girl laughed, and bent over to shake the water from her jet black curly hair. "You're all Boy Scouts down there! Where is your home?"

"I'm a Kentucky hillbilly" The man lit a match and set fire to strips of paper he had torn "Did you ever see a genuine hillbilly before?"

"Only Bronx ones in bands." The girl wasn't quite sure whether to take him seriously or not. "Are you in a band?"

"I'm a one-man band, all by myself." He reached up on the mantlepiece and took down a weather-beaten banjo. "Miss—er, What's your name? meet Tillie"

The girl bowed.

"My name is Moleen O'Dare, and I'm very pleased to meet you Tillie"

"She's the great love of my life" Jed clasped the banjo and planted a loud kiss on the strings "Tillie's been handed down in my family for generations. We've been through some pretty tough days. Tillie and I But we stick together."

"Are you in the show business?" Moleen sat down and extended her wet pumps toward the burning papers

"We're going to be." Jed sat down with Tillie on his lap. "We haven't had much luck yet But Tillie won't fail me. She'll take me to fame and fortune yet. We never give up."

"Do you sing hillbilly songs?" the girl asked then

"Heaven forbid!" Jed shook his head vigorously. "At least not the kind you hear the so-called hillbilly bands do I sing ballads and old Southern airs."

"You haven't told me your name," the girl reminded him, sinking back on the chair suddenly, conscious of a great weariness.

"I'm just plain Jed Patrick, and since we met so informally, I think you should call me Jed."

"I will! And you call me Moleen."

Jed got up and pulled the couch close to the fireplace, then went into the closet and brought out two pillows.

"Here, Moleen," he bent over and put them behind her back, "prop yourself up here and I'll get a blanket to wrap around you. You look frozen."

"I am chilly." She shivered. "But you shouldn't go to so much trouble"

"I'm glad to have company." Jed wrapped the blanket around her. "I've got a kid sister just about your age, and I've always taken care of her."

"I'll bet you have, Jed" Moleen sighed gratefully and relaxed against the pillows.

* * *

Strange, she thought, how all right it seemed for her to be doing the first really unconventional thing she'd ever done in her life. A risky, foolish thing perhaps. But somehow, Jed's manner and his warm smile and voice made it seem a sensible, friendly thing to do. If any one had ever told her she'd ever go to a strange man's room! But, watching him, Moleen knew she was safe and that Jed understood or she wouldn't have been invited there.

Jed went to the closet and took out a small hot plate.

"Let's have some coffee That'll warm you up."

Moleen, who had spent her last ten cents for coffee and a roll in the morning, closed her eyes and felt like crying She had almost forgotten how hungry she was. Jed measured coffee and water and took a bag of doughnuts from a shelf.

Watching him, Moleen thought he must be at least six feet two inches tall, and he was lean and brown as a young tree. His hair was unruly, brown and bushy. Friendly brows stood out over wide kind gray eyes. His hands were tremendous, and his arms long and leen. Abraham Lincoln somehow came to mind; Moleen though that the same sort of kindness was in his face.

When the coffee was ready, Jed brought cups and saucers and set the bag of doughnuts beside her on the couch. Then he pulled his chair closer to the fireplace and sat down.

"Feel drier?" He put sugar in her coffee.

Moleen felt tears stinging her eyes. She swallowed.

"I feel—like a queen with all this service. You're so good."

There was no mistaking the childish catch in her voice. Jed thought she had looked deeply troubled and in need. Seeing the hungry way she bit into the doughnut, he knew she must be famished. She looked so small and weary. Jed wondered who she was and where she came from, and would have liked to ask, but he was too well-bred to pry.

* * *

Warmed by the coffee, Moleen began to talk. He learned that she had spent months looking for a job and that nowhere in the city did there seem to be a place in an office for a nineteen-year-old girl without experience. Finally, she had decided the only sensible thing to do was get a job in a restaurant. At least you were sure of eating. But it seemed too many other girls had the same idea. And there were no vacancies.

Jed told very much the same story. How he had saved money from his farm for a year after graduating from a small Kentucky college, and determined to batter at the portals of Broadway until he got a chance to sing for some one who would give him an opportunity. But aside from an odd job for a night or two with an unknown band, he had had no luck.

The terrible importance of money had entered their discussion and Jed wondered at the bitter look that crossed the face of the young girl as she leaned on an elbow and stared into the fire.

"If you haven't got money," Moleen said tensely, "there isn't much use. There isn't much to live for. My mother wouldn't have died last year if we'd had money to take care of her."

Her father, Jed learned, had died when she was small. There was a younger brother Pat, who was away on a trip, and no one else. Except the uncle in Brooklyn that Moleen hastily invented, so that Jed wouldn't think she was entirely alone, or might be making a play for sympathy.

Jed, too, was used to poverty; but he accepted it philosophically. After having given vent to her bitterness, and enjoyed the usual experience of unloading a few of her troubles by confiding them to a sympathetic listener, Moleen relaxed. Jed was glad when she stopped staring into the dying embers and smiled.

"Would you sing for me, Jed?" She yawned sleepily.

"You bet!" he accepted the invitation with alacrity. "What would you like to hear?"

"Oh, anything. Something you like."

Curled up in the blanket, with her hair drying in a riot of curls, and her small pinched face faintly pink from the warmth and the coffee, Moleen looked like a sleepy child. Jed lifted his banjo and, strumming softly, began to sing. First, "Sleep Kentucky Babe." Then, "Mah Curly-headed Baby."

Moleen, who knew little about music, knew that it was not just a voice. It was a wonderful voice. A rich, mellow soothing baritone that went straight to the heart-strings. Jed's long, lean fingers brought such melody from the old banjo as she had never heard.

In a little while the blue eyes closed. Suddenly, from her measured breathing, Jed realized his unfortunate little guest had fallen asleep. For a time he went on strumming softly. Then he laid Tillie down and scratched his head uncertainly.

It seemed heartless to awaken the sleeping Moleen. Suppose, he thought unhappily, the girl had nowhere to go. At least he'd let her have a good nap before he roused her. Jed turned out the center light and pulled his chair over by the reading light to look over the Help Wanted ads of the evening paper. And in a few moments, he, too, fell asleep.

The morning sun streamed in the window when Moleen opened her eyes. For a few seconds she could not remember where she was. Then she sat up in alarm. A rumpled Jed smiled uncertainly at her from his chair.

"I just woke up myself. The top o' the mornin' to you, Miss O'-Dare!"

"Oh!" Moleen jumped up from the couch. "Why, I stayed all night!"

"I'm afraid so" Jed yawned and and ran long, lean fingers through his hair. "But don't let it worry you I meant to waken you after you'd had a little nap"

Moleen looked down at her wrinkled old print dress with distaste.

"Don't I look a fright! I'd never get a job looking as though a steam-roller had run over me"

Jed got up to put on the coffee pot.

"There are a couple more doughnuts left. We might as well have breakfast before you go."

"Oh, no, Jed." Moleen shook her head. "You've been too good. I can't impose on you any more"

"I'm adopting you for my mascot," Jed grinned. "And all mascots have to be fed. Don't thank me. I've been lonesome for my kid sister, and you remind me a lot of her. By the way, I've got five sisters and four brothers"

"That's nice" Moleen went over to the sink to wash her hands and face. "And I'll bet you have a lovely mother, too"

"The best little mom in the world! She's big as a minute—like you"

"So—was mine," Moleen's blue eyes clouded. "I always wondered how she ever went out by the day and worked to bring up Pat and me. Scrubbing and washing It was—awful!"

"My mom has worked mighty hard, too," Jed nodded, "bringing up ten children on a farm. But Tillie and I are going to make a lot of money, and some of these days she's going to live like a queen."

Moleen smiled softly.

"You're a good son. You'd never bring any unhappiness to your parents. I can't say as much for my brother Pat. He was always getting into some kind of mess, and poor mother never knew what was going to happen next. The kid didn't mean any harm. But he had to run the streets while mother worked."

Jed nodded.

"That's the trouble in big cities. But listen, little lady, it's not going to do you any good to go over all that. It's past. So you just drink some coffee and let's forget it"

"Yes, Fairy Godfather." Moleen sat down obediently. "Funny, it seems as though I'd known you all my life I ought to be terribly embarrassed because I went to sleep and stayed here all night. But it seems—all right."

"It is all right," Jed assured her. "But you mustn't take any other man at his face value. Sometimes it doesn't work."

"Don't I know it!" Moleen said grimly. "I could write a book."

* * *

They were dunking their doughnuts silently when the knock came on the door. Moleen's hand went to her mouth nervously. Jed jumped up and turned the knob.

A large red-faced woman greeted him with a burst of indignation.

"I thought I heard voices!"

"Now, pardon me, Mrs. Loomis, while I explain," Jed began quietly. But Mrs. Loomis pushed him aside and strode into the room

"You've got a nerve, Missie! What kind of a house do you think this is?"

Moleen got up slowly, her eyes wide with alarm. But before she could reply Jed broke in.

"You can say whatever you want to me, Mrs. Loomis, but don't insult this girl. She hasn't done anything wrong. I can explain."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 1938.

Even the year's longest day seems short to those who are doing work that they enjoy.

Free speech is guaranteed—even in instances where a lunacy inquest might seem more appropriate.

The financial plight of the railroads being what it is, Mansfield may have to arrange for a tag day, or something, to smooth up the North Main street crossing of the Pennsylvania lines.

Another 'Safe' Fourth Planned.

MANSFIELD is again planning an elaborate Fourth of July celebration, intended to provide suitable community entertainment and amusement for that holiday, without involving the element of danger associated with indiscriminate use of fireworks and other explosives which were responsible for many accidents, and sometimes fatalities, in earlier years.

Sale and use of fireworks of all kinds have been banned in Mansfield and it should be generally understood that it is AGAINST THE LAW to bring inside the city limits any firecrackers, fireworks or other explosives purchased at roadside stands outside the city.

It will probably not be long before the state legislature can be awakened to the public demand for a law banning the sale of fireworks anywhere in the state—except for use in supervised displays.

Until then it should be regarded as an act of bad citizenship to violate the law by bringing fireworks into the city—or permitting children to buy or use them.

The city ordinance against fireworks is intended to protect children and adults. It should be respected.

Considering Low-Cost Housing.

BETTER houses must be built in future subdivisions, says a speaker at a real estate convention, and selling must go along different lines. The realtor should stress location and usefulness for family living instead of orchid bathrooms.

Useless ornamentation of houses adds greatly to the first cost, adds an unexpected amount to the upkeep and does no good on the outside, where its bad taste soon becomes manifest, and no good on the inside, where it usually cuts some of the rooms into queer shapes, declared this speaker.

Houses should be built from the inside and not from the outside, said another. They should be functional. Instead of setting an outside shape to be stylish, letting rooms fall where they may, with consequent inefficiency of housekeeping, weariness to the housewife and an effect of restlessness on everyone who enters them, the rooms should be laid out for simple, effective and pleasant living. When this is done, the outside usually takes also a simple and permanently beautiful form.

Low cost housing is on the way, said a third. But the public must learn that it cannot have for little money what it can get for much. If judgment in laying out is used, however, the standard of living need not be lowered. It is only false ideas of what is fashionable that must go.

To sum up the judgment of realtors, people must begin to take serious thought of what they want in houses. Perhaps Frank Lloyd Wright hits the nail on the head when he says that people must first take thought as to what they want of life. That done, good houses will follow.

Lower National Income.

THE Federal Commerce Department reports the national income last year as $69,800,000,000. Call it $70,000,000,000. That was only about $10,000,000,000 less than the all-time record of 1929. Then came the big drop. When shall we equal last year again?

The President said, before this slump began, that the country could and should have an income of $100.000.000,000 a year. It might be a reasonable expectation if we regained a business activity equalling that of the first half of 1929, and prices on a level with that period.

It would mean a big climb from where we are now—somewhere around the 60-billion level and still going down. It took five years to rise to 70 billions from the bottom of 40 billions in 1932.

Yet facilities for production and distribution are greatly increased. In spite of pessimistic forecasts of a long depression, we may rise with surprising rapidity when the time comes for the next boom.

Three-Fold Sorrow.

WHILE sorrow in some form is common to human experience, few are required to suddenly experience such depths of grief as has Mrs. Jay N. Dirlam during the past three and a half months.

With the shock of her husband's death intensified by suspense over the fate of her two fine children, Mrs. Dirlam spent the entire intervening time in the west, refusing until the last to give up hope that her children might be alive.

Little can be said on such an occasion, except that the sincere sympathy of an entire city has extended to Mrs. Dirlam and the members of her family circle during this sorrowful time.

Waning Trailer Industry.

DEPRESSION is reported in the auto trailer industry, which was off to a good start a year or two ago and was expected to fill the roadsides and beauty spots of this country with transient colonies of nomads. Perhaps it is just a phase of the general depression, and activity may revive when business does. However that may be, production of tourist trailers is down to about one-third of what it had been.

Many observers will find it hard to harmonize this report with the number of trailers seen along highways and in camping parks. Perhaps the explanation is that the older models, newly painted up, are still in use, so that the reduced quantity now being turned out, added to the existing supply, makes a deceptive appearance of big gains. It is a fact, however, that two-thirds of the manufacturers have gone out of business or changed to other lines of production.

Senator Carter Glass says "Washington is no place for a sane man"—but the experiment might be worth trying.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

BERTHA HIATT, who lives on a farm near Elwood, Ind., has been writing some interesting letters to this column on relief as seen from the farm point of view.

"Somewhere," writes Miss Hiatt, "I have a clipping of a column of yours which stated 'Farmers pay no rent,' (a statement I do not recall having made, as farmers pay much more than the equivalent of rent—yet they do own the land, if it is theirs, in the end)."

"Miss Dorothy Thompson made the same statement," continues Miss Hiatt. "So general is the notion that farmers provide most of their own living and don't have to have much money. For widely read columnists to make such statements is to hinder recovery.

"The large percentage of our population that is self-supporting, but on a low standard of living, should be considered when handing out relief. WPA workers get higher wages than thousands of these folk. This generous system is adding an unnecessary number to permanent unemployment rolls. Sociologists say that folk had better live on a low standard than have morale weakened by too much help.

"One trouble with solving our economic problem is that those at the top are trying to do it without knowing the condition of all classes.

"Labor used to be too poorly paid (miners surely need good pay for risking lives). Labor does not pay some other classes for their services in relation to what it demands for itself, yet their work is just as important for providing for society's needs. If labor is to be employed, other classes must be able to buy the products of labor and industry. . . ."

* * *

IN THE CITY

In the meantime, a grocer in a large city remarks:

"My heart goes out to most of the people who come in to buy for families these days. Prices on foods have been going up. Yet the WPA checks are the same. And some have no WPA checks, no work. But they must eat, their families must eat.

"I wonder sometimes how some of those folk exist through the week on the meager food supply they buy. And it is the worst food, food that has little nourishment."

* * *

IN MY CITY

I live and pay taxes in a city which has a reform Republican administration and where I believe there is no relief graft. Yet there is one crisis after another, for the anti-New Deal Democratic state administration, supplemented by a rural-dominated legislature, has refused to provide means for relief. The governor is said to be angry because Harry Hopkins federal relief administrator, would not permit him to get control of the state relief administration, for political purposes. The rural-dominated legislature believes there is "extravagance" in relief administration—even though a special legislative committee found none, but did find that the city was trying to spread out a few dollars a week to each needy family.

The poor souls who need relief live virtually from hour to hour in the hope that the city will find some new money somewhere to ward off their starvation.

* * *

SOCIO-ECONOMIC MISHAP

Neither farmer nor worker ought to be condemned. Both are in a serious plight.

But if they rise in bitterness against each other, there is no hope. There will be only chaos, destruction.

Our socio-economic system is to blame for the plight of all of us.

Truly, government subvention of farm products to prevent price decline and doles for labor are no solution. Both are a heavy tax and a deterrent to a solution and prosperity.

The same applies to tariff and other protection to industry.

But are we all brave enough to cut the knots—and go ahead?

To a Robin At Dawn

—By HELEN LOOMIS LINHAM

Twirl your merry notes across the dawn,
Beloved bird with fire upon your breast!
You run, and then you pause upon my lawn,
As if in thought, or is it but to rest?
No sound, no music ever have I heard
So limpid sweet, now loud, now very faint;
I think if I can find this lovely bird
In heaven I shall climb to be a saint)
And on a golden lyre chant oh, my sweet,
Your praises, Summer, Autumn, Winter, Spring!
Until great saints, and small on every street,
Apollo, too, join in with me and sing
I can't, dear bird, but you can follow me,
You've wings for flying wherever I might be.

VULTURES!

Democrats and New Dealers Battle

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — With congress' adjournment the campaign for the selection of the next one really began.

It will be perhaps the most interesting contest of its kind in American history — certainly the most interesting since just before the war of secession.

Most Washington commentators seem to be betting somewhat in favor of a New Deal victory.

They do not predict that it will be as overwhelming a triumph as President Roosevelt scored in 1932, 1934 and 1936, but they do prophesy that it will be decisive.

Undoubtedly it will be so — on paper.

But will it be so one-sided?

* * *

DEMOCRATS TO CONTROL.

The senate, to an arithmetical certainty, will remain Democratic.

To a reasonable certainty the house of representatives will remain Democratic; for the Republicans to gain a majority would require a completer flop-over than is politically imaginable in such short order.

However, the G. O. P. will gain some seats in both houses. I believe that this is conceded by the most enthusiastic New Dealers.

And not all Democrats are pro-New Dealers. The administration assuredly is trying to prevent the renomination of anti-New Deal Democrats. It may succeed here and there, but not everywhere. And where it does succeed as to renominations, it risks the creation of Democratic splits calculated to result in Republican victories on election day.

* * *

F. D. R. IN CONTROL?

A majority of our Washington commentators have been nonplused by President Roosevelt's retention of his strength in his second term.

The rule has been that second-term presidents have had terrible terms with congress after their various re-elections. They point out that President Roosevelt has arrived at the middle of HIS second term in tolerably good control of the legislative branch.

But HAS he?

He did not put supreme court reorganization across.

He did not put executive reorganization across. They say he will call an extra congressional session, immediately after election, to attend to it—but that depends on the election's result.

He did put the wage-hour bill across—but wasn't that, maybe, because congress was more afraid of labor than of the White House?

And congress overrode one of his vetoes just before it adjourned.

* * *

TOO CONFIDENT?

The Republicans do not talk so much about beating the administration in November. The G. O. P. is too effectively smacked down to do any bragging. It just complains. The anti-New Deal Democrats, however, are militant. They are boastful of what they will do in the fall.

I am not sure that the Democratic anti-New Dealers are not over-confident.

But I am not sure that our Washington commentators are not mistaken, either, in their view that the administration has the situation sewed up in advance.

It will take several more primaries and election day to tell.

* * *

"BOUGHT"?

The theory is that this administration has "bought" the voters with little doles of $30 or $40 per family monthly apiece.

I do not believe that the average family can be bought at such figures.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Must There Be Profits?

By ERNEST M. PATTERSON
President, American Academy of Political and Social Science.

It is a commonplace to say that much misunderstanding and confusion arise because we do not use words with unchanging meaning. One of the best illustrations is found in the heated discussions that are always going on about "profits."

Business men insist that they cannot carry on business unless they can make profits. Many critics say that profits are unnecessary. One way to clarify the dispute is to describe what is involved by leaving out entirely the word that is the cause of the trouble.

We may start by noting that public opinion in the United States clearly favors a continuation of private ownership and operation. To this there are exceptions. The mint and postoffice and certain other activities are owned and operated by state and local governments and there is no protest. Other lines of business—our public utilities—are subjected to a very large amount of government control. In fact, all business is subject to some supervision and restraint. Nevertheless we still think of private ownership and operation as basic in our economy.

This leads to the next point, which is that a business man cannot go ahead for any great length of time unless his receipts are equal to or greater than his expenses. His receipts are determined by the price at which he can sell his product multiplied by the number of units he can sell. He may sell a large number at a low unit price and have just as large gross receipts as he would receive from selling a smaller number at a higher price per unit.

Expenses are more complex. One group includes what are known as operating costs. There is some argument over what should be included under this heading but the main items are clear. Raw materials used must be paid for, wage and salary rolls must be met and a proper amount must be set aside for depreciation, bad debts, etc.

The next group is the amount that must be paid to those who have invested in the business. If money has been borrowed from a bank, interest must be regularly met and ultimately the loan must be repaid. Anyone else who holds notes or bonds must have his claims satisfied. Stockholders also must receive something—a so-called fair return if the business is to run smoothly.

Is anything more necessary? A business man at once will talk of the risk there is in all business. A business depression may reduce his receipts and make it impossible to pay dividends or even interest, and perhaps force him to reduce wages or discharge employes.

There are many other unpredictable factors, such as fire and flood and other "acts of God." There is the possibility of war and, of growing importance, the probability that some new invention or a change in demand will render his product and his physical plant obsolete.

To the extent that we want any line of business to continue we must do what we can to allow returns in good time large enough to offset the losses that come when these unpredictable happenings occur. To do it in full is impossible but we should not deliberately prevent business from looking ahead and planning for trouble.

This does not answer many of the really important questions. The troublesome cases are the ones where large gains are made without any corresponding public advantage. For example, we condemn railway rebates which in the past brought large gains to certain private shippers but with an injury to their competitors. Our public utilities, if not controlled at all, would in some cases charge rates higher than enough to cover all the items of expense mentioned above.

We may return to the word "profits." We may approve profits, in fact we may say that business must receive profits if we mean enough to cover the expenses just enumerated. This leaves open the important distinction between gains that are unduly large and unduly small. About these the debate will go on.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

It is harder to save a penny than it is to earn one.

Risky floats more trouble than it drowns.

No man can endure with patience a woman's slur about his clothing.

How It Started

The Word "Pedigree."

We have a request for the origin of the word pedigree, for which we extend thanks for turning the light of research upon what develops to be a very colorful word.

The theory is advanced that we have the word from the French phrase, "par degres"—by degrees—the connection being that a pedigree is a family record "by degrees."

More likely, however, is its derivation from the French "pied de grue"—"crane's foot." The crane's foot was the shape of the heraldic sign to indicate a geneological tree—a pedigree.

Listen, World!

Skip It!

THE FIRST LESSON one learns as a news reporter is to be brief. Newspaper space is precious. News-reading minutes are usually limited. There is neither place nor time for superfluous palavering. Stick to facts. Weigh your words. Choose only those crisp and colorful words which will work for you. Delete all the dead-heads. SKIP THE NON-ESSENTIALS.

"SKIP IT!" That newspaper slogan has gradually worked itself into our popular vernacular*—and it's as good a rule as one could find for living one's life in this fast moving age. Indeed, it would save many a life from tragic wreckage if it were adopted in time.

SKIP IT! Yes, I know—you were born in a more leisurely era. Folks had time to putter when you and I were little tads. Time to fuss and be finicky over little details . . . to make mountains out of mole hills...to day-dream or wallow in memories.

And, looking back, those days seem heavenly—don't they? You sigh for the lovely, lazy leisure of your youth and bitterly resent the speed and pressure of this modern life. "If only things could be the way they usta be!"

But stop and think! What good did all that fiddle-faddling do? How much did they profit by that boundless leisure? Far be it from me to unreservedly endorse all our modern Giddy-ap, but neither can I kid myself over the Dear Old Days of Dawdle. Were our fathers and mothers the better or braver for their endless hours of chair rocking on the front veranda . . . or chair tilting down by the livery stable? They were not!

It was, I grant you, a pretty and pleasant way of life, but it was also powerful piffling. Skulls as well as attics were crammed with trash. Those veranda sessions produced a pile of curel and silly tittle-tattle as well as crochet edging. And no K. K. K. conference ever promoted more ignorance, bigotry and bawdy surmise than those livery stable conclaves.

THAT CHARMING WORLD ENDED IN THE GHASTLY WASTE AND BUTCHERY OF THE WORLD WAR . . . FOR WHICH IDLE TONGUES AND DROWSING BRAINS WERE LARGELY RESPONSIBLE.

AND MILLIONS OF YOUNG PEOPLE ARE IDLE TODAY BECAUSE THEIR FATHERS AND GRANDFATHERS SPENT THEIR TIME GABBLING INSTEAD OF PREPARING SOCIETY FOR ITS TERRIFIC READJUSTMENT.

Remember these facts and—SKIP IT! Cut out the useless talk! Keep away from the useless memories! What if a part of your heart is buried back there in some little grave? What if a wrong was done you then which will scar you all your life? SKIP IT! PUT THAT GRIEF, PUT THAT HURT, AWAY. YOU HAVE NO MORE RIGHT TO WASTE YOUR LIFE IN USELESS GRIEVING AND RESENTING THAN YOU HAVE IN BOOZE OR DRUG ADDICTION.

SKIP IT!

Delete all the non-essentials from your life. Drop the trashy friends . . . the vicious prejudices . . . the senseless habits that buy you nothing. Cut out the posing and puttering . . . the drifting and dawdling. There is no time, no space today for trash in your mind or your soul.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY NEEDS STREAMLINED CHARACTERS.

CUT OUT THE CLUTTER.
SKIP THE PUTTER.
GET GOING!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Lines written in dejection from a sickroom, about 10:35 a. m.:

That's right, Sugar . . . I'm a little blue today . . . My doctor tells me I'm getting along fine . . . He says: "We'll have you up and out of here in no time."

And that's what distresses me . . . I don't want to get out of a nice room like this . . . I don't want to make a "wonderful recovery" . . . I have no desire to be another speedy triumph for the ingenuity of Alvah C. Bickner, M. D.

A quick recovery in the midst of all this fun would seem the hollowest kind of victory. It would mean the return of responsibilities. They'd shove an oar into my hands and I'd have to start pulling again. And my hands blister easily.

* * *

THAT'S the trouble with having a doctor like this man. There is no poetry in his soul. He gets you well too quickly. You get sick and he asks you a few simple questions and, like that, he knows exactly what the trouble is. He says, do this and take this, and by golly you're feeling like Dempsey again. Before you even have a chance to relax and get lazy. It's a nuisance, really. He's the man to call if you've got a train to catch. But not if you want to take it easy and come back to normalcy in leisurely stages.

Well, it's my own fault. I knew better. I've seen him work before. A long time ago there was a little girl, and they didn't think she was going to get well, and he took her to the hospital, and I went over there, too, and gave her a transfusion, and Bickner said: "Do this and do thus and so," and she became well. They didn't think she would ever get well, but you should see her today.

This sick room of mine is in Rutherford, N. J., about 10 miles from New York. . . . On clear days you can see the Empire State building, like a blue spear in a crayon sky . . . It is just far enough away from New York to be "removed" . . . There it is at your fingertips, but you can't hear it . . . No jangling taxi sounds . . . It's like having your cake and eating it . . . Like Coleridge saying: "As silent as a painted ship upon a painted ocean."

* * *

THIS is a small town with shady streets and a station square and a bus line and a movie theater and a place where everybody goes for ice cream sodas on hot days . . . It is 45 minutes from Times Square by bus or train and ferry . . . And yet it is at the end of the world.

One of my pals just brought my mail over from the office. It was a good mail . . . Ninety-five communications from press-agents and maybe a dozen letters from friends . . . Some of the readers of this column have been jibing me . . . They're lots of fun . . . Well, tomorrow I'll answer them all . . . I'm well enough to answer them now, if I wanted to, worse luck . . . But I don't want to just now . . . I can feel one of those lazy, drowsy slumbers coming on . . . And it feels so good to stretch . . . and yawn . . . No nightclubs, no commuting, no cramming one's self into steaming subways, no swing bands, no telephones, no actors, no nuthin' . . . except . . . sleep.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

When Do You Lie?

Sitting at a luncheon with half a dozen men and women whom I had never seen before, a doctor began to propound the thesis that it never is necessary to tell a lie.

He insisted that even in the practice of his profession he always was able to give his opinion, even in a matter of life and death, in such a way that an outright lie was unnecessary.

You may realize that not one of the others at the table agreed with him. . . . A doctor's wife said: "Well, it may be unnecessary for a doctor to lie, but it's quite another proposition for a doctor's wife. Hardly a day passes that some woman who has no business to know asks me a question about some patient of my husband. And whenever that hapens I lie! And I'm never ashamed of doing so!"

A newspaper woman said: "I tell so many lies that sometimes I am unable ot locate any sharp line between the true and the false. I meet acquaintances on the street and tell them how happy it makes me to meet them again when, all the time I'm talking to them, I am hoping they won't ask me to dinner. I see no harm in that kind of lying."

An engineer said with a precision equal to one of the equations with which he works: "I believe in lying and I believe in telling the truth. A lie is only a lie when it involves withholding information from someone who has a right to its possession."

And even a clergyman who was there said he had no fundamental objection to lying. "Even the commandment," he said, "forbids us only to refrain from bearing false witness against our neighbor. I do not believe, naturally, in malicious, wicked lying, but I must admit frankly that there are occasions when I admit that a lie is the only alternative to needless pain."

And I said: "It seems that for us at this table the question is not, 'Do you lie, but when do you lie?' Even you, Doctor, imply that without exactly lying you use phrases that suggest the opposite of what you really mean to your patients. You do not withhold the truth from them but you do not offer it to them, crystal clear and obvious."

And how about you, who read this? Do you consider that a lie is occasionally a social necessity? What kind of lies do you tell? Are they ever a burden on your conscience? And WHEN do you lie?

NEARS JURY

Testimony Nearly Complete in Heath Will Contest Suit.

A jury in common pleas court was due to begin deliberations late today or early Thursday in the trial of a suit contesting the will of Charles E. Heath, former executive of the Fate-Root-Heath company, Plymouth, who died in May, 1937.

Twenty-one witnesses, including 17 for the plaintiffs and four for the defendant, had been subpoenaed today to testify. The trial opened yesterday, with Judge C. U. Ahl of Crawford county on the bench. Earl Heath of Plymouth, defendant in the case, requested that Judge Ahl replace Judge C. H. Huston.

Plaintiffs in the suit, both minors, are Everette Heath Krueger and Margot Anne Krueger, of Shaker Heights, who seek to share in the estate of Charles E. Heath, their grandfather. Under terms of his will, his property was left to a son, Earl Heath, who also was named executor.

AGENTS TO MEET

Ohio Insurance Men to Hold Parley Here Friday.

Insurance agents from all parts of Ohio will come to Mansfield Friday when the summer meeting of the Ohio Association of Insurance Agents is held at Westbrook Country club. Between 100 and 150 members are expected.

Ray Murphy, New York City, assistant manager of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives, a past national commander of the American Legion, will be the principal speaker.

Among the subjects to be discussed will be the new Safe Driver Reward plan, recently upheld by the courts, by which the driver who has no accidents during the year receives a "dividend" from the company at the end of the year for his careful driving. Proposed new taxes against the insurance industry will also come up for discussion.

The morning will be given over to golf and luncheon will be served at 1:30 p. m. in the club house. Bryan M. Terman and R. F. Cox are in charge of the local arrangements.

Best Country Correspondent

Selected as the best country newspaper correspondent in the annual contest sponsored by the magazine, The Country Home, Mrs. Edna Eaton Wilson, farmer's wife from Ripley, Okla., won a $500 prize and a trip to New York, where she is shown writing a letter back home describing "the sights."

will be followed with a much-needed shower."

That was the president's answer to a question whether he believed business had scraped bottom in its downward trend. He side-stepped an inquiry about when the shower would come.

Mr. Roosevelt gave out a new commerce department estimate that the national income—the total income of all those earning money—would be slightly more than $60,000,000,000 this year, $5,000,000,000 higher than previous government estimates.

He also announced he would give one of his fireside chats from the White House on Friday at 9:30 p. m. (E.S.T.)

The president said the nation-wide radio broadcast would be general in subject. It probably will cover business conditions, relief and how well congress carried out his legislative program.

He gave a hint of a possible item for the broadcast when he said that talk of the recent congress being a $12,000,000,000 congress was rot. That figure, he indicated, included measures authorizing future government expense but not carrying appropriations at this time. Furthermore, he said, a large portion of the money appropriated was for loans to be repaid.

The chief executive disclosed that he was a step ahead of congress on the $3,750,000,000 spending and lending bill which he said creates a partnership between the federal government and localities.

For three weeks—two weeks and more before congress passed the legislation—he has been approving public works administration projects, subject to signing of the bill, he said.

As a result, dirt will begin to fly within 60 days on projects using $350,000,000 of PWA's $965,000,000 new fund.

All but a little of that sum will be allocated within the next two weeks, the president added, commenting that PWA's money goes to work in the shortest possible time.

The Works Progress Administration, which received $1,425,000,000 from the bill, and other government agencies designated by the measure to fight the business recession were—like PWA—Mr. Roosevelt asserted, ready to do their jobs at once.

STUDY BUILDING CODE TONIGHT

Contractors, Supply Dealers to Meet With City Heads for Discussion.

The adoption of a building code for Mansfield with regulations to cover building construction in the city will be studied by a group of contractors and building supply dealers when they meet with city officials at the Chamber of Commerce tonight.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the chamber said city officials had been invited to meet with the group.

Last week, nearly 50 contractors and builders met at the Southern hotel and discussed the plan only briefly during a sesison at which they were addressed by members of the Industrial commission of Ohio on safe building practices.

It was pointed out at that time by Williams that Mansfield was the only city of its size in the state that does not have a building code. He asked that the group meet tonight to consider the proposition which he said was submitted to council a year and a half ago by the chamber's committee on fire prevention.

He told the group that the proposal had been referred to a special council committee headed by Russell D. Porch, but thus far "nothing has been done about it."

CORRECTION

A typographical error in the "Courthouse Calendar in yesterday's News-Journal resulted in reporting issuance of marriage licenses. Licenses were issued to W. Traver Watson, Akron, and Dorothy M. Baker, Mansfield, and to Bill Dasouras, Canton and Caleopy Zaros, Mansfield.

JUDGE TO SPEAK

Sherrick to Address G. O. P. Meeting at Park Tonight.

Judge C. C. Sherrick of Ashland, member of the Fifth district court of appeals, will address a public meeting tonight at North Lake park pavilion, held under the joint sponsorship of the Richland county League of Republican Women and the John Sherman Republican club.

Donald Ogden, president of the John Sherman club, announced that a covered-dish dinner will be held previous to the talk, which will be followed by a radio reception of the Louis-Schmeling fight at New York.

TOLL IN TRAIN WRECK AT 37

3 More Bodies Found, One 130 Miles From Scene.

MILES CITY, Mont.—(AP)—Officials counted 37 known dead today as the search for victims in the crash of the Milwaukee road's "Olympian" neared an end at Custer creek.

Finally gaining access to sleeper B after several rebuffs in attempting to enter the submerged car, workers last night took three bodies from the silt-laden car.

Three more victims' bodies were pulled from the Yellowstone river yesterday, one of them 130 miles from the crash scene. Officials expected to find more.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

THREE FRIENDS GIVE BRIDE-ELECT DINNER

Miss Dorothy Baker Honored at Spinster Party; Mrs. Weikert, Miss Alexander, Miss Keene Hostesses.

THREE friends of Miss Dorothy Baker's were hostesses last night for a party of 16 at the Women's Club when they gave the spinster dinner. The hostesses were Miss Barbara Keene, Mrs. Carl Weikert and Miss Elizabeth Alexander. This was the final pre-nuptial social event to be given in honor of Miss Baker.

Dinner was served at a long table centered with daisies floating in a shallow crystal bowl. White candles flanked the centerpiece and a miniature bride and groom were at either end of the table.

Following the dinner, the guests went to the home of Mrs. Weikert at 346 North Townview circle, where they made a bride's book for the honoree. The wedding gift from the hostesses was found by the bride-to-be when a poem giving directions was read.

Miss Baker will become the bride of Traver Watson at the First Congregational church Saturday at 4:30 p. m. Preceding the ceremony there will be a half hour of organ music. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hoy Baker, 139 Lind avenue. Mr. Watson, who lives in Akron, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Watson, Conneaut.

Guild Conducts Pilgrimage, Tea

The flower guild of the Women's Association of the First Congregational church sponsored the annual garden pilgrimage and tea yesterday afternoon. About 60 persons left from the church at 1:30 p. m. to tour the various gardens.

Included on the itinerary were the gardens of Mrs. Milton Doolittle, Robert S. Gibson, "Kingwood," estate of C. K. King, Mrs. A. J. Rigby, Mrs. Tom Ford, Franklin Bissman, Paul Weir and Mrs. J. H. Gongwer.

At the end of the tour tea was served in the garden of Mrs. C. P. Siegenthaler, Forest Hills road. Mrs. Thornton Moore, flower guild chairman, was in charge of the affair.

Make Arrangements for Dance Saturday Night

At a short business meeting of Beta Kappa Tau in the Larwill rooms of the public library final arrangements for the semi-formal dance which will be held in Grotto hall Saturday evening were made. Miss Thelma Dickson, president, was in charge of the meeting during which arrangements were completed for a wiener roast tonight at Middle park.

Miss Florence Smith and Mrs. Myron Hilligoss are in charge of arrangements. Miss Marjorie Ruhler was accepted last night as a new member.
